

The Nation Wide Campaign OF The Episcopal Church.

What is its object? What will it do for its members?
What will it do for this community?

The first great object aimed at is to get every member aroused to the opportunity and responsibility to do Christ's work in the world, by taking upon themselves a pledge to do such service as they are fitted for.

By getting its members to do this it will give to them the satisfaction of knowing that they have made good use of the talents that were given them. What answer have you ready for the stewardship that has been given you?

For this community it will arouse an interest in every right thing for its development, putting a solid body of workers behind every movement for the upbuilding of good citizenship. Providing funds and workers for the building and supervision of places where our young people not only of the Church, but of the Community at large, can have clean, wholesome amusements under the Church's care.

Ask yourself what Christ has done for you.

You will be asked what you are going to do for Christ.

Two's a company, three's a fight. But wouldn't you fight like a tiger if another fellow tried to steal the only girl you ever had? See Will Rogers, that real human fellow, you can't resist in "Jubilo", showing at the Crystal Saturday and Monday. It's the romance of a "no-good guy" who made good.

Not the wild woolly melodramatic sort of far-fetched action which is so many times ridiculously over-drawn, but the real happenings of every day life in a historical adventurous period of our pioneering days—that is Wm. S. Hart in "Wagon Tracks" showing at the Keith Monday and Tuesday.

Police officers say a good part of their time is taken up looking for fellows who issue checks on bank accounts which do not exist. The bogus check fellows are becoming so numerous as to place under suspicion a lot of men whose checks are good—in other words it is difficult for the business man to determine what check is good or not good.

CALHOUN RETURNS FROM THE FORD PLANT AT DETROIT

R. C. Calhoun, machinist foreman at the Hendy-Ogier garage, returned Tuesday from Detroit where for six weeks he took intensive training in the Ford factory. Part of his time was spent in each of the different assembling departments, and the instruction he received was very thorough, for thoroughness and efficiency are the two essential points of the Ford works. Mr. Calhoun entered the plant as a regular workman, he was required to give the same hours and same service as any other mechanic, and was paid a daily wage. There was nothing about a Ford car in which he was not given practical instruction by actual work, and this was supplemented by evening lectures on the theories of mechanical construction. Mr. Calhoun, who has been a machinist for twelve years, much of that period as an auto mechanic, amassed a fund of information relative to automobiles during his stay at the Ford plant which will prove wonderfully beneficial to him, which can be applied to not only a Ford car, but to any other make of car.

The Ford plant, Mr. Calhoun says is a wonderful organization and so perfectly systematized that each of the 57,000 employees render an efficiency that cannot be excelled. He found women at some of the machines and was told that they were widows of former Ford employees who had been killed or had died in service during the war. These women draw the same pay as did their husbands and are entitled to the same seniority of rights. Women whose husbands are killed at the works as they are common privilege. This class of widows are small, for only one man met a violent death at the plant last year. A score or more blind men are employed at such work as they are competent to do. Last November Mr. Ford concluded the markets were charging too much for meat, so he installed a market for the benefit of his employees with the result that 35,000 pounds of meat was sold on the opening day at a price but little more than one-half the price charged by the market. Satisfied with the result of the market, a general store has been opened which is a monstrous affair.

Having seen the manner in which Ford cars are constructed in the manufacture of parts and the efficiency in assembling the parts, Mr. Calhoun returns more fully convinced than ever that the Ford car is a good car.

"Cotton goods are still ascending in price," said a merchant yesterday, "and none can tell when the summit will be reached. I read in a paper this morning that operatives in cotton mills are receiving from forty-five to sixty-five dollars per week for eight-hour day work. If such is true it at least partially accounts for the big jump in cotton goods."

Hear the Edison once and you will be convinced. Dixon will be glad to show you.

Millions of Russians Die.

Thirty million men, women and children have died in Russia from violence, famine and disease during the last three years, according to a statement made Tuesday by Princess Cantacuzene-Speransky, granddaughter of Ulysses Grant, in an appeal in behalf of the American central committee for Russian relief. The tremendous death toll was exclusive, she said, of five million men who had been killed in the war.
