Misses Evangeline and Catherine Herrod entertained at a linen shower the last of the week complimentary to Miss Willa Rauch. The evening was spent in playing cards. House decorations were red and white carnations and the same color scheme was carried out in the elaborate midnight lunch. Table decorations were bouquets of red and white carnations tied with red tulle, and candles with tiny hearts for place cards.
"Where have they gone?" asked the irate father. "On their honeymoon," was the answer. "That's a fine place for an unmarried couple," the father shouted, and off he dashed to stop them. Go see what happened in "Please Get Married," the Screen Classics' latest "faster and better," picture at the Sun theatre Thursday and Friday. Viola Dana is starred in this production from the Oliver Morosco stage success that had Broadway laughing way into the summer.

The condition among clothing manufacturers is foretold in a local instance. E. J. Vanderhoof the early part of last month ordered uniforms for the high school cadets of one of the largest manufacturers in the country. An acknowledgement of the order was received by Mr. Vanderhoof with the statement that the goods would be shipped at the end of two months. Later a letter was received stating that the shipment would be delayed three months or longer; in fact there was an intimation that the manufacturers did not know when the uniforms could be made and shipped.
"Spending Other People's Money." One of the most famous in-door sports ruled only by one's conscience is that of spending other people's money, and whether it be huge sums by heads of organizations or the contents of the husband's pay-envelope by the housewife, the rules of the game are the same.
As this campaign of Thrift is directed especially to the house-wife, we will consider her and her ways. The universal idea is that the income earned by the husband is the property of both and so it should be but it is nevertheless true that the duties of housewife and mother can, by management and system be lightened considerably, or shirked and made a burden. At the present time we hear much senseless railing against the indifference of Capital to the physical welfare of Labor, and yet never in the history of the world were so many safeguards thrown around the worker or so many benefits of health, insurance, pensions and bonus offered to the intelligent operator as today. We all know with what acclaim the pay-envelope is received, what sort of reception is staged for these giants of toil upon their return to the bosom of their families?
How many wives count the expended energy, the nervous tension, exerted often to the breaking point, the never lifted burden of family responsibility that daily drives them on and on prodded by the ever increasing demands and desires of the present day. Not many women consider their men after they leave the house, the daily grind becomes a matter of course and if the home is mismanaged the children neglected and debts pile up, the trouble is laid on the inadequate pay-envelope, the Capitalist who furnishes the needed employment is execrated and the shiftless wife escapes. To such homes as these is this campaign directed.
Thrift to be exercised in every movement of the family life, the proper care of health, the preservation of one's possessions, the restoration of the mending basket, and the determination of the wife to jealously guard the expenditure of the hard-earned money of the husband. Such a course will bear out by the roots one of the greatest contributors to the present unrest.

A Correction.
Editor of Tribune:—The North Platte Telegraph on Thursday published a false account of the fire in the Bechon livery barn and an intimation that I carried heavy insurance on horses. Reports have come to me from said article that I caused the fire to get the insurance. I have requested Mr. Kelly to correct the false reports in his paper and he has refused.
I had no insurance on my stock and but $300 on hay and grain; the loss on this was $30.00. Mr. Kelly could easily obtain the truth about the circumstances of the fire if he desired instead of publishing false reports, and I do not appreciate his methods of trying to make his paper sensational. Yours truly,

January Hay Shipments Heavy.

During the month of January the Harrington Mercantile Co., of this city, sent out over three hundred carloads of baled hay from shipping points between Lexington and Sutherland, a total of about 4,000 tons and with a value of about $76,000. Practically all this hay was shipped to buyers with whom contracts were made last summer.

Increased Business Anticipated.

Supt. Woodruff, of the Wyoming division, spent the latter part of last week in town looking after Union Pacific matters. He anticipated increased business over the Union Pacific following the relinquishment by the government on March first; this as a result of competitive business in which the Union Pacific is in a position to secure the long end. A considerable number of new locomotives have been ordered and delivery of them will soon begin.

Buys Star Cafe.

Chris Paulson purchased the furnishings of the Star Cafe on Front street the latter part of last week of the Greeks who had been conducting it for some time. The place has been closed pending a general renovation and will be opened to the public in a few days. Mr. Paulson announces that he will conduct a restaurant second to none in town. He will retain his ownership of the Silver Front cigar store.

Basket Ball Games.

The Gothenburg basket ball team defeated the local team Friday evening by a score of eleven to nine. North Platte was somewhat weakened by the absence of Brown and Healey. A final goal tossed by North Platte tied the score as the whistle for time was blown, but the referee refused to count the score.
Saturday evening Lexington defeated the local team by a score of thirty to twenty in a game that was fast and full of ginger. The same evening the North Platte girls' team defeated the Lexington girls' team.

Additional Yard Trackage.

The erection of the 375-ton capacity ice plant by the Pacific Fruit Express Co. will call for increased trackage in the west yards and a probably re-arrangement of the tracks now in use. The exact amount of this new trackage could not be learned other than that there would be several miles.

No Word of Escaped Convict.

No word of the whereabouts of Harvey Wallace, the escaped Wyoming convict who took French leave of the officer who had him in charge Tuesday night, has been received. He seems to have as completely disappeared and covered his tracks as though the earth had opened and swallowed him. That he could drag along or carry the sixteen-inch steel shoe with which he was hobbled and escape detection is evidence that he hid during the day and traveled at night, but certainly he was forced at times to stop at some habitation for food and water. It is possible he secured a file with which to sever his hobbles.

Extension of Water Mains.

Water Commissioner Welch, who is a civil engineer by profession, has prepared a map showing the territory which is not now but should be covered by water mains, together with the territory where present small mains should be relaid with mains of greater capacity. This map will be later placed on exhibition at some central point and attached thereto will be explanatory notes.

Nebraska Girls and the Y. W. C. A.

The entry of girls into the business and industrial world which began before the war moves rapidly in these days. They are going up to the cities in great numbers. Where girls are gathered together there is found the Y. W. C. A. The large buildings in Omaha and Lincoln are familiar to all who visit these cities. Here the country girl can consult the Room Registry department in order to find suitable lodgings. Here she finds sympathetic companionship and spiritual fellowship in the gymnasium classes and the clubs of the Y. W. C. A.

It may not be known by many that in such growing centers as Beatrice, Falls City, Grand Island and Hastings there are county associations which are doing a great deal of good.

However, the Y. W. C. A. is far more than any local organization. It is a great national body, federated with an international movement. It has in each of its eleven fields, a headquarters which is a source of inspiration and practical help to all the local work. This national organization trains the workers, organizes the student associations and conferences and undertakes special pieces of work such as that among foreign born women and among colored girls.

Above all the Y. W. C. A. is not forgetful of the less fortunate girls and women in foreign lands. The Y. W. C. A. of the University of Nebraska supports an Alumna, Miss Grace Coppock as National secretary for China. This year the Y. W. C. A. is asking for the World Service Budget a contribution of $3,000,000. Nebraska's share is $86,807. The campaign takes place in February.

"The Woman of Bronze."

Margaret Anglin, with a modern play entitled "The Woman of Bronze," by Henry Klatsenacker and Eugene Delard is coming to the Keith theatre, Wednesday, February 11th.

These two authors, who are well-known French dramatists have provided a vehicle for Miss Anglin which brings her back from the light comedy stage to the scenes of her greatest triumphs, the emotional drama. They have created for this versatile actress in the role of "Vivian Hunt" a part that calls forth all her talent as an emotional artist. Miss Anglin's past appearances in roles of this kind and her individual success in them, such as "The Great Divide," "Mrs. Dane's Defence" and "Zira," is an assurance that her newest role will be in able hands. "The Woman in Bronze" is a three act drama with a modern theme and dialogue that is brilliant. The authors consider it among their best work.

Miss Anglin has given her personal attention to the direction and presentation of "The Woman of Bronze" and has selected a cast that will in every way measure up to the usual standard of excellence set by her in past seasons. Among those in the supporting company will be seen Fred Eric, who has been Miss Anglin's leading man for several seasons past; last season Mr. Eric appeared with Miss Anglin in "Hilleted."

Coming Entertainment.

The play "Engaged by Wednesday" which the Neacfee Camp Fire Girls are giving Friday evening, Feb. 20th, was given several years ago by the senior class of the Fremont high school as their senior play, and scored a great success in every way. The play is full of action and interest from the beginning to the end. One humorous situation follows another and through it all runs a story true to life—a story that appeals to both young and old.
