How do you judge oil?

These are the things that determine the true cost of a motor oil—the protection it gives the motor against wear, economy in fuel consumption, the size of repair bills for operation and upkeep.

Polarine stands high when judged by these standards. It cushions all engaging parts with a wear-preventing film that keeps moving parts snug-fitting, working easily with little vibration or noise.

Polarine has unusual stability under high engine heat. It assures a fuel-tight and gas-tight oil seal in the cylinders—maintains full compression and delivers maximum power.

Use Polarine and reduce motoring costs. It is sold where you buy big-mileage Red Crown Gasoline—at first class garages and service stations where this sign is displayed.
