

LEARN MUCH IN QUIET HOUR

Cultivation of Habit and Attitude of Listening is Matter of First Importance.

Cultivate the habit of listening, as you would the lungs, muscles or memory. See to it that you listen with every sense alert to all that is going on in this vast panorama about us. Cultivate, too, the habit of listening when you are alone. If it is in the aisles of a vast forest, listen to the myriad voices all around you, the song of the stream, the murmur of the pines, the swish of leaves and epic of oak and elm. If it is alone in your room, take a few moments for quiet meditation, and listen to the still "small voice," God's messenger, speaking to you of the inner thoughts and life which only he and you can understand. It is only by thus "lowly listening" that we can hear the right word for our guidance.

There is always time to listen, for by listening I mean an attitude of mind and heart rather than a particular time or place in which to exercise the art. The time and place for its cultivation is here, there, now and always, wherever we are, whatever we may be doing. It is surprising how much more the listeners of the world accomplish than they who are blind, deaf and unresponsive to the great possibilities in this life that is ours.—Elsye Nash Sater in Christian Herald.

EARLIEST OF ENGLISH COINS

Golden Solidus, Still in Existence, is Believed to Belong to Year 421 A. D.

The golden solidus of Scen Omodhu is the earliest English coin in existence, estimated to belong to the year 421 A. D. by Alfred Ancombe, F. R. H. S., at a meeting of the British Numismatic Society. He expressed the opinion that the coin had been struck to commemorate the victory that the Alemannic Prince Scen, duke of Clair Benet, or Winchester, won over the Saxon invaders of Britain in the sixteenth year after that in which the comet of A. D. 443 was seen—namely, in A. D. 459. Scen was the official chief of ten provincial kings in southern Britain. In the "Merlin" he was called "Duke Escann." In the "Morte d'Arthur" he was called "Duke Eustance." Wolfram von Eschenbach, circa 1210, said he was slain by Orilus, lord of Cumberland.

The folk name Omodhu, genitive plural Omodhu, Mr. Ancombe identified with the Amothingas of "Widsith." Their homeland lay near Shrewsbury, and to this day that town is known by the Welsh as "Caer Amwythig."

Make the Best of the Present.

Most of us dream of what we might have been if we had been given a second chance. If we were honestly given a chance to choose another path for another life, we would come back at last to the choice of a better chance at the life we have lived. Our long regrets are not over things we had no opportunity to do, but over things that we could have done and did not do. What we need is not a better chance, but a better use of the chance we have. It would not be a new line of life we would choose, but new vigor and wisdom in the line of life we have already followed. If, therefore, we do not want to build up regrets for old age, we will want to put as much fitness and devotion into the life we are living as we think we would put into another life if that were permitted us.

Misled by the Head.

May Vokes was talking about one of her early appearances in New York. "Gee!" she said, "I shall never forget a write-up one of the papers gave me." "Because it was so good?" she was asked. "Oh, no," she replied. "Because I had such a hard time to find it. I didn't know it was in the paper until about half a dozen of my friends called me up and told me about it, and even then I couldn't locate it, although I searched that old paper ragged." "Why couldn't you find it?" "Because," said Miss Vokes with a grin, "the darned thing had a two-column head on it. I thought it was a patent medicine ad."

How Chinese Handle Eggs.

Hunan, China, is a very large egg-producing district. Changsha is one of the most important distributing centers and eggs are preserved here for shipment to other parts of China. Under the old system the eggs are collected in the country round about and sent to the egg commission houses to be sold to retail dealers or peddlers. For export to other parts of China the eggs are preserved by wrapping them in a coating of clay and salt mixed with rice hulls. Such clay-wrapped eggs are then closely packed in large jars and sealed up, after which they are said to keep indefinitely.

"The Goose Hangs High."

The expression "the goose hangs high" comes from the southern amusement known as "goose pulling." A goose, its neck carefully plucked and well greased, was hung by its feet to the branch of a tree. Men on horses would ride past at a gallop, trying to catch it by the neck and pull the head off. The better the goose was in dodging, the greater the fun. When the goose hung high, so the competitors had to stand in their stirrups, the joy was the greatest. The whole of this expression is, "Everything is lovely and the goose hangs high."

A GENIAL HOST

By GEORGE E. COBB

(Copyright, 1928, Western Newspaper Union.)

The most agreeable incident that had come into the boy life of Ted Morse was that signified by his stay for one week at the Palace hotel at Brompton, owned and operated by his father's brother, John Morse. Thenceforth the lad had one fervid ambition: to become in time the manager or proprietor of a like establishment.

Uncle John was a portly individual who had followed the hotel business for over a quarter of a century. He was built for the task both in disposition and bulk. He knew every commercial traveler on the road, he kept fairly pace of the times in equipment and improvements. The dazed Ted took back home with him a pleasant memory of the big arm chair in the hotel lobby, filled by his big relative, who was revered by his clientele, always jolly and joking, a typical "mine host."

The years went on, but the glowing memory never faded from the mind of Ted. He became a clerk in the store of his native village and one day received a letter that set his wits staggering. His uncle had died and had bequeathed to him the hotel. The dream of early youth was fulfilled.

"Your uncle had been failing for about two years," the executor of the estate told Ted when he arrived at Brompton, "and the odds and ends have not maintained the old systematic order. However, young blood coming into the proposition will make the best of a very promising situation."

It was in Ted to make himself popular. He faithfully copied his uncle's methods. He became a genial host, indeed. He was accommodating, lenient, agreeable. The traveling men took to him and there was no stinting in the menu and no deterioration in general service. A new element came into the situation later that harassed Ted. His friends and relatives began to trade on his liberal, easy going nature. They came in swarms. They came with their families and sent their friends as well. It seemed as though every acquaintance he had received a tip that half rates, or no rates at all, were accessible to those who had the art to appeal successfully to the indulgence of a man who loved to be considered a genial host, and whose ambition was to be known as "running the best hotel on the road."

By the end of a year Ted began to realize his weakness. Thus, a half cousin had swooped down upon him with a family of five, staying for over a month and departing without paying half a dozen worthless checks on the hostelry, some old time friends had borrowed several hundred dollars from him. His manager had worked in a special friend as buyer for the hotel, and Ted could not help but notice the extortionate prices paid for supplies. "Something's wrong," decided Ted. "I must find somebody to watch the outlay while I sit around playing gentleman."

Ted was thus occupied in his favorite arm chair one evening when a little girl of about ten came hurriedly into the lobby. He could not help but notice her deep agitation. She looked weary and her attire was poor and old.

"Please, sir," she panted, "mamma is sick."

"Eh, hello! what's that?" exclaimed Ted. "Who is your mamma and where is she?"

"Mamma is tired out and walked a long way, and she expected to find friends here, and they're all dead and gone, and we're hungry, too. She's just outside."

Big hearted Ted Morse stirred himself with a vigor ever present when he could do anybody a good turn. He followed the child outside. There seated on the step of the ladies' entrance was a young woman, pale, with closed eyes, and apparently overcome with weakness. She looked dazed and despairing as Ted touched her arm and spoke kindly. In fragments she weakly told her story. Both her husband and herself had in years ago been respectively steward and book-keeper of the hotel for John Morse. They had left for another position six years previous. Her husband had died leaving her penniless. She had come to Brompton to see if her former employer could not give her employment again.

"So the finely kept books showing a profit where my careless figuring had a loss was your work, eh?" observed Ted, when he had seen mother and child installed comfortably. "You've come at the right time, Mrs. Alward. If ever I needed experienced advice it's just now."

Within a month Mrs. Alward was back at her old desk and the lark in profits began to diminish. Within a month Ted experienced his first love and there was a quiet wedding.

Genial host and genial husband to a charming, helpful woman, a kindly father quite to little Eva, it seemed as though fate had led to his door the influences that were to make him a success and a happy man.

Clothing Allowance.

When making out a budget, approximately one-sixth to one-fourth of the family income should be apportioned for clothing. Seventy per cent of the clothing allowance will be needed for outer clothing such as coats, suits, dresses, shoes, etc., and 20 per cent might be allowed for accessories and 8 per cent for cleaning and repairs.

in Lincoln County, Nebraska, and recorded in the Mortgage Records of Lincoln County, Nebraska, in Book 42 of Mortgages, Page 307.

And plaintiff prays that said U. S. Live Stock Co. be adjudged and decreed to have no right, lien or interest in said mortgages for the reason that said defendant, U. S.
