that place for a week: The boys were in charge of Commandant Reynolds, and the band was under the direction of Prof. Killian, of the North Platte high school. The boys made many friends among the business men and by their quiet, business like conduct on our streets, won the respect and confidence of our entire citizenship.

In this day of business men's trade tours and booster clubs out to advertise a home city, North Platte stands unquestionably at the front in the character of her publicity output. These boys, representing the school spirit, are constative, pull together spirit of the business men, and by their gentlemanly behavior showing the trend of home culture, all went toward henor for North Platte, and Gothenburg is not slow in handing out the highest congratulations on the character of this representative body of fine young men.

From the admiration given the gallant leaders. Reynolds and Killian, down to the enthusiasm over the tiny wolf mascot, Gothenburg spraks her best for the North Platte Cadets.
