The writer and his family recently took a trip through the canyons of the Big Horn country and returned over the Jack Morrow flats by way of the Experiment Station. We were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hendy on the trip as well as at the fine picnic dinner which was enjoyed in the canyons at the Experimental Station. We saw some fine fields of corn and alfalfa and from the number of sheaves of small grain to the acre we would judge it is a bumper crop.
