Put yourself in his place. Would you forgive her? If you want a spectacular answer see "Should a Husband Forgive" Keith—Wednesday and Thursday.

Everyone grieves with the wife, sympathizes with the girl, gazes tenderly on the boy, hates the villain and rejoices in the marvelous happy ending of "Should a Husband Forgive?" So will you. Better come. Keith on Wednesday and Thursday.

A four-ton G. M. C. truck was sent here Saturday by the government as part of the equipment of the North Platte Aeroplane landing field. The truck will be used largely for transporting gasoline barrels from the freight depot to the field.

Sheriff Salisbury left last week for Gannett where he got a Mexican boy who attempted to shoot the entire extra gang in that place. The United States Authorities are going to deal with him. The sheriff is trying to arrange to send him back to Old Mexico.

Down on the aeroplane landing field conditions are assuming a business like aspect. The big 80x90 foot building is well under way, a 1500-gallon oil tank has been placed and a force pump installed, and there is a big stock of gasoline and lubricants on hand.

SCRAPPLE.

A Column of Nonsense.

The other day we were writing a letter to our wife who was away from home and we got as far as the part where we were telling her how much we missed her at dish-washing time when we heard a chirrup near us and a bewitching voice said, "Won't you vote for me?" We got up from our typewriter as soon as we could unwind our legs from the legs of our chair and with apologies for not being more attentive we said we surely would vote for her. She timidly came nearer and said she knew we would because she had always longed to go to college and if she got enough votes, a lovely corporation back east would pay her entire expenses. We didn't pay anything just then but inwardly approved the good sense of that lovely corporation. However we did not feel embarrassed a bit for she did not leave any time for that. She told us she wanted us to subscribe for as many magazines as we could and that she would get our votes and make her way through college. She came up real close to show us the votes and smiled at us and we were glad to take about half the magazines she had on her list and we followed her out to the front door as she tucked our check into her reticule. She went into Lee Simond's shop and while we were not particularly interested, we saw her come out and she was tucking a paper into her reticule where she had put our check. Then she went into John Herrod's and just then Ed Davis came along and he being one of our fast friends, we told him of the good deed we had just committed in sending a winsome lass, who was probably homeless and motherless, through college. Ed looked at us kind of funny like and then said it didn't appeal to him as much as it used to. He said he had seen that dame the day before and turned her down just as he had turned her down about once a year for the past seven or eight years. He said at first he used to buy magazines that way but after he had bought enough magazines to support a whole college he decided to let someone else in on the game and he was glad we had taken hold. Just then we thought we heard our phone ring and we had to go and answer it and now we know.

E. F. Murphy left yesterday for Cheyenne.

Fordson Farm Tractor

More than 100,000 Fordson tractors have been sold to farmers in the United States. They are helping those farmers do more and better work in less time and at less cost. North, East, South, West—everywhere the Fordson has proven itself a money-maker and a real necessity to the farmer. Besides it is helping mightily to solve the labor problem.

These one hundred thousand and more practical farmers have affirmed the economy—the exceptionally low fuel and operating cost—of the Fordson; its time and labor-saving qualities and its abilities to increase production. The Fordson was built to be the most economical tractor; it is compact and devoid of excessive weight. And it is built of the same strong iron and steel as is the Ford car.

Winter or bad weather does not hinder the Fordson's usefulness. Day or night—twenty-four hours a day if you choose—you can utilize the Fordson.

Only so many Fordsons are allotted to this territory. Orders are being filled in sequence—first come first served. Let us have yours now.
