SHOP TALK.

We have just installed a National Cash Register in the Tribune Office and by its use we expect to be able to keep a more accurate record of our business than has been able to be done heretofore. The record is made by the machine of every cash transaction and in addition to this record there is a space for a pencil notation which will allow us to enter the name of the person making a payment on subscription and thus furnish an additional check on our subscription records.

This office has made a specialty of Public Sale bills and display advertising and our facilities for this kind of work are the best. When an office is fitted for a certain kind of work and the employees are given a great deal of that kind of work to do the product shows a familiarity with that kind of work which cannot be acquired in any other way. We print sale bills on any color of paper, in any color of ink, in any size and in any quantity and the price is just what the job is worth and no more.

Nothing impresses the work of a lodge, club or society upon its members and friends like issuing a neat year book. This may be of four or one hundred pages but it must be neat and well done. We are prepared to do this work and some of the strongest organizations in our city have had us print their year books in the past. Our prices are right for the quality of work we turn out.

Single copies of The Tribune may be bought at Newton's Book Store or at The Tribune office. They are five cents each. Anyone wanting more than one or two extra copies should speak in advance as we do not print but a few more than is needed each issue.

Mrs. C. M. Maricott of Paxton, was a business visitor in the city last Saturday.

WILL THAT ALARMED WORLD

Eccentric Frenchman Planned to Build Up Large Estate, But in the End Signally Failed.

Mingled wonder, indignation and alarm were excited in the public mind over a will left by Peter Thelusson, a Frenchman, who died on July 21, 1797. It appears that the testator had accumulated a large fortune as a London merchant, and by the provisions of his will he left to his wife and children the sum of £100,000, and the residue of his property, amounting to about £600,000, he committed to trustees, to accumulate during the lives of his sons, and finally to revert to his eldest great-grandson. Should no heir exist, the accumulated property was to be conveyed to the sinking fund for the reduction of the national debt. According to the lowest calculation it was estimated that the fortune would amount to £19,000,000. The will was generally stigmatized as absurd and illegal, and the family tested it in court, where it was sustained, as it was likewise in the house of lords. In 1900 an act was passed making null all bequests for the purpose of accumulation for longer than twenty years after the testator's death. The last grandson died in 1856, and a dispute arose as to whether the eldest son's grandson should inherit or the eldest great-grandson. It was decided in favor of the former. By reason of litigation and accidents of management the fortune inherited was little more than the original £600,000.

Eruptions on the Sun.

Not long ago, at the Yerkes observatory, an eruption was observed (and photographed) on the rim of the sun which threw up material to a height of 500,000 miles. One cloud of it, which appeared as if floating detached, was reckoned to have some thousands of times the volume of the earth. We are accustomed to regard great volcanic explosions on the earth as the most appalling of natural phenomena, but they are feeble and trifling disturbances compared with the outbursts which are continually taking place all over the body of the sun.

WHAT SHAPE HAS MOTH HOLE?

On This by No, Means Simple Question Hangs Result of an Omaha Lawsuit.

On whether a moth makes an oblong hole or a round hole when he sinks his molars into the more succulent portions of dad's last winter overcoat or sister's summer furs, linges a law suit in Justice Collins' court, brought by an Omaha store against Miss Josephine Hill of Council Bluffs. The store seeks to enforce payment for an $80 suit which Miss Hill is alleged to have purchased, says the World-Herald.

According to the girl's testimony, a week after she bought the suit she found a moth hole in it. She returned it to the store. The suit was mended and given back to her with instructions to wear it 30 days and bring it back at the end of that time if not satisfactory. Miss Hill testified she wore the suit for 30 days, placing it carefully on a hanger in her closet each night. At the end of the specified period, examination, she said, revealed not one but a whole community of holes. She refused to pay for the suit, and the store took the case into court.

After one clerk for the store told the court the holes complained of couldn't be moth holes, because any self-respecting moth eats a round hole, while those under discussion were distinctly oblong, and after Miss Hill had made an exhibition of the holes and another clerk had suggested that Miss Hill might have worn the holes in the skirt by rubbing against her typewriter desk, Justice Collins looked wise and took the matter under advisement.

Joan of Arc House.

In 1911 the city of Paris bought the old residence of the archbishops of Sens in the Saint Paul quarter with no particular thought as to what use would be made of it. The idea has now gained favor of converting it into a Saint Joan of Arc museum. The building was built between 1474 and 1519, and is uncommonly rich in such memories. Queen Margot lived in it for a while, and it is inseparably connected with Charles VIII and the Hundred Years war. It is regarded as one of the very best specimens of Parisian architecture of the fifteenth century.
