FRANK EBELE WRITES OF HIS TRIP THROUGH SOUTH AMERICA.

Editor Tribune:

When I was in your office last I told you I would write you something about my trip to South America. I left New York, March 17th, and arrived at Rio de Janeiro, April 5th after a very pleasant voyage. After staying there about three weeks I took train to Santos, the big coffee port. The scenery around Rio de Janeiro is beautiful. In the city they have numerous fine parks and most of the buildings are built of brick or adobe which is a sun-dried brick, and are plastered over with cement or mortar and invariably they have a tile roof and are painted pink, yellow or gray. The scenery is refreshing with the mountains green from the base to the summit and the sun shining in the valleys.

From San Paulos to Santos is about fifty miles and the descent of 2200 ft. from the top level to the valley below is made in about forty minutes with a cog railway. Santos is not much of a place but she exports more coffee than any other port in the world. From Santos we took steamer to San Francisco, Brazil, where I went inland several hundred miles to see some of the orange and banana plantations. You can see the oranges and bananas growing wild along the railroad right of way.

You can buy a bunch of bananas for about the price you pay in North Platte for a dozen. From there I took steamer for Rio Grande de Sul, which is an important harbor in the southern part of Brazil. Swift & Co., has a large packing plant here where they make jerked beef for export to Europe. It is of poor quality. From Rio I went to Montevideo, which is probably the most up-to-date city in South America. Swift & Co. also has a packing plant here but the beef is of the best.

Next I went to Buenos Ayres which takes about eight hours by steamer. It is a city of about 1,700,000 people and like all the cities of southern South America it has fine buildings and fine large parks. Life on the streets is just like in the states only they speak Spanish here but I have no trouble in getting along as there are many Americans and English here. I met a man from Sutton, Neb., who went to school at Lincoln with several people from North Platte and I also met a man by the name of Smith who used to be Deputy United States Marshal out there and he named over quite a lot of old timers who used to be there before the eighties.

I see by the papers that most every body is on the water wagon in the states but it is quite the contrary down here. Everything is plenty but the only drinks I ever see are Americans.

I have been in several provinces and find it a great country. They grow about everything they grow in the states. Some provinces grow mostly wheat and others alfalfa and corn without irrigation. Land can be bought cheap yet compared with the price of land in the states. The climate is good and healthy. The only drawback that I can see is that fuel and lumber are very expensive here and in some places the locusts do a great deal of damage to growing crops. If anyone cares to write to me in regard to Brazil or Argentina address me care of United States Consul.

FRANK EBELE,
Buenos Ayres, Brazil.

North Platte Tribune,

Enclosed please find a copy of a communication which I received from the National Educational Association. Please give it some publicity if possible.

Thanking you for the same, I am,
Yours very truly,
AILEEN G. COCHRAN,
Co. Supt.

The teacher shortage remains a menace to the public schools according to preliminary reports made public today by the National Educational Association. Replies to questionnaires sent out by the Association have come from all sections of the United States. These reports show that in places where teachers' salaries have been increased one hundred per cent or more the situation is nearly always satisfactory. But such places are comparatively few, and in localities where salaries have been increased fifty per cent or less the teacher shortage is commonly greater than a year ago. Rural communities are hardest hit. Signed reports from superintendents of many counties indicate that a third of their rural schools cannot open for want of teachers. Tens of thousands of schools will be in charge of teachers who have had no professional preparation and whose academic training barely exceeds that of the children they teach.

Relief from this serious situation, which imperils the stability of American rural life, will be sought from the next session of Congress. Renewed efforts will be made to obtain the passage of the Smith-Towner Bill, which creates a department of education with a secretary in the President's cabinet and provides federal aid of $100,000,000 for education.

CARD OF THANKS.
We wish to extend to our kind neighbors and friends our heartfelt gratitude and thanks for their many acts of sympathy and kindness during the birth and death of our darling baby girl. We also thank those who sent the beautiful flowers.
Felix and Verga Bokoskie.
