Keep Your Blood Pure Nature Will Do the Rest

Did you know that ninety per cent of all human ailments depend upon the condition of your blood? Nature gives her warnings in various unmistakable ways, so that when the appetite fails, and you become weak and listless and a general run-down condition seems to take possession of the whole body, it is an unfailing sign that impurities will steadily accumulate until your general health will be seriously affected. You should recognize the importance, therefore, of very promptly cleansing out the system, and keeping the blood supply pure and robust. Get a bottle of S. S. S. at your druggist to day, and note how promptly it builds up the appetite and gives new strength and vitality. THOSE WINSOME DANCE FROCKS

YOU cannot think of anything much prettier to dance in than this flower-like frock, which might be made of either satin or taffeta. For there is something joyous in the crispness of this particular silk that endows every frock made of it with a certain buoyancy and the looms turn it out in exquisite shades of every color under the sun. No other silk is so tractable when bouffant and spirited draperies are needed. But smooth, lustrous satins have advantages when supple silks are required to carry out the idea in the mind of the designer.

The lovely party frock, shown in the picture, reveals a new interpretation of the petal dress and looks like a great blossom. Four overlapping panels, scalloped at the bottom, and faced back with satin, resemble long petals. The deep facing weights the panels in a way that insures good lines in the skirt, which is gathered in, all around at the waist line. It almost goes without saying that the bodice is plain and it is worth noting that it is not very low and has a band of georgette at the top with satin straps over the shoulders. Bodices are growing higher and short sleeves gaining favor in every fashion center, and at this rate we shall arrive at the square neck and elbow sleeve mode before long. There never was anything prettier or more becoming.

Short draperies at each side lead up to high loops of satin at the back of this frock and they are reminders of the bustle mode. The moderately wide girdle is ornamented with a lovely cluster of roses made of satin ribbon, and mounted at the left side. Some dance frocks have no girdles, their plain quaint bodices are extended a little below the waistline, overlapping the top of the skirt and are "crushed," that is slightly wrinkled about the waist. Garlands of satin flowers or of vividly-colored satin fruits, as grapes, little apples, cherries, make the prettiest girdles that ever were to encircle the waist in place of a sash. Where so colorful and important a decoration as this is used, the skirts are without drapery but are very full and have wide hems.

Concerning Blouses

THE fashion reporter, like the Athenians, is always looking for something new, and the search, in so far as blouses are concerned, is a little discouraging just now. Designers appear to think without ceasing in terms of georgette crepe—any other materials, get only an occasional scrap of their attention, and these georgette blouses merely provide the theme of embroidery for discussion; but that they furnish in endless variations. A very new and promising departure points in the direction of taffeta blouses in plain colors, toned up with plaid and striped ribbons and the time will soon arrive when the annual processions of lingerie blouses will present themselves in anticipation of the needs of southern tourists.

Meantime embroidered georgette blouses parade the work of the needle woman or of machinery that undertakes to do the work of deft fingers. Blouses and smocks are classed together and a discussion of one includes the other. The smock (or blouse with a peplum) shown in the picture, has the familiar round neck and the plain girdle of georgette that ties in front. But it boasts an unfamiliar pattern in embroidery, employing two colors and unusual sleeves, long and narrow at the wrists. The checkered, embroidered border and the moment the sewer are quaint and childish and are confined to the neck and sleeves.

A new rival of the georgette blouse appears in the pretty taffeta jacket, made of plain silk and ornamented with plaid or striped ribbon that is selected to harmonize with it and to brighten it up. Small silk-covered buttons, painstakingly set on in neat rows, are one means by which these ingratiating new arrivals make themselves engaging, but they are sure of a welcome anyway. Occasionally a handsomely embroidered blouse of cotton invites us to consider its elegance and to forget its extravagant price. The taffeta blouse is different in character and, by comparison, it is modest in price, because it requires little handwork. It points in the direction of high necks and long sleeves.

The Flavor Lasts So Does the Price!

The Wild, Wild Women.

Swiggs—The pictures I liked best were those wild animal ones of a few years back—the pictures that had a story interwoven around lions, tigers, wild cats, and so forth. Quite unique and interesting! I wonder why they dropped off so suddenly. Did the animals perish or devour the actors or what happened?

Swaggs—Competition was their Nemesis. The "vampire" came into vogue about that time, and naturally they were too tame in comparison to terrify the public any longer.—Flin Fun.

Progress.

"Has Gladys Twobble abandoned her plans to enter the movies?"
"Oh, yes, Gladys is now passing through the second stage of soul development."

"Ah!"
"She's thinking seriously of being a shun worker or a missionary. In another year she'll be about ready to marry some likely young fellow who is earning a decent living and settle down to a normal existence in a bungalow."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

COUNTRY'S FIRST CORN MILL

Recent Discoveries Establish Its Site at a Point on the St. Croix River, Eastport Me.

The site of what undoubtedly was the first tide-water mill on the American continent has been discovered at Red Beach, Me., where Low's brook empties into the St. Croix river at a point nearly opposite the southern end of Dochet's island, where De Monts and his men settled in the year 1604, three years before the settlement of Jamestown. In excavating for a fish pond near his summer home, R. S. McCarter of Cambridge, Mass., unearthed the unmistakable remains of an ancient dam of stone and timbers. Comparing the site with the original map of the island, authorities agreed that it must have been the site of the water mill mentioned in the old records as employed by Sieur De Monts and his men to grind their corn, being the largest stream within an area of several miles on either side of the river.

Not Quite.

"So they had smuggled whisky on that yachting party. This is going the limit."
"Oh, no; that is three miles out."
