EDITORIAL

The foot ball boys have a hard time explaining why they did not make a better showing against Scottsbluff. They have a number of good reasons but they must be used all together for no one reason gives satisfaction. We were not at all disappointed as the final score was in our favor and Healey kept up his remarkable record for kicking goal. With only Curtis and Grand Island yet to meet, it looks like it will be a remarkable season for the foot ball team.

COURSING MEET HERE IS ATTRACTING MUCH ATTENTION.

The races to be pulled off here on Nov. 20 and Dec. 1-2-3 are causing a number of people to take heart and show an interest in life. The idea of some real sport when the football season is over and the novelty of the sport is attractive. The management claims assurance that a string of dogs will be on hand which will give every one the most thrilling entertainment possible. An offer of $1500 in prizes will stimulate entries and the best hounds in this country are expected to enter.

The other day when we were going over to Walter O'Connor's Store to buy some ten cent articles, one of his sales ladies who has just returned from a trip to California, asked us why they put the ocean so close to the shore? We said we didn't know so we thought we would go over and ask Ed Davis about it. Ed was at the store, visiting with the Lamb girls and we talked about things in general and finally we asked him and he asked the girls. Eva said she thought they built the ocean so close to the shore to keep the vast amount of water from drowning the sea gulls but Jennie said that wouldn't do. She said the shore was to keep the water around the whales and sardines so they would not get on the land and so they built it close up. We said we didn't understand what she meant by that and then Jennie said she didn't understand just what she meant either but a friend of her's had said that it was built close so one could sit on the shore and wash his feet. Ed said that might apply to the girls but that he thought people should attend to those matters at home. He said he had heard that the ocean was placed so close to the shore so people could take a dip without being seen very much but since the invention of bathing costumes it was a disadvantage to have the ocean so close that people could not see. We told him we had a bathing suit and that when we went down to the shore we wanted the ocean right up close and he said he should think we would, and we got hot and told him we guessed we would look as good in a bathing suit as some other people we knew and he got hot and we waited around for a bit, thinking maybe the girls would leave but they kept on staying so we told them good day and went without saying another word to Ed. And now we know.
