Don't overlook the Little Folks.—Christmas is the one time of all the year best loved by the children in the home. All the pleasure of anticipation is theirs, and though at no other times in their lives, perhaps, while they are still children money may buy genuine happiness for them. In the choosing of our stocks from year to year we always keep the little folks in mind. You will find here many inexpensive gifts that will add to your own happiness this Yuletide by ministering to theirs. Clinton, The Jeweler.

A Fair Week.
A man lately kept a meteorological diary of his wife's temper. It ran somewhat as follows:
"Monday—Rather cloudy; in the afternoon, rainy.
"Tuesday—Vaporish; brightened up a little towards evening.
"Wednesday—Changeable, gloomy, inclined to rain.
"Thursday—High wind, and some peals of thunder.
"Friday—Fair in the morning; variable till the afternoon; cloudy at night.
"Saturday—A gentle breeze, hazy; afternoon, a thick fog, and a few flashes of lightning.
"Sunday—Tempestuous and rainy; toward evening rather calmer."—London Answers.
