EDITORIAL.

We have received a copy of the endorsement of the Carpenter's Union of the Welfare Association. This is fine. It means that these men of the Carpenters' Union are interested in making North Platte a good place to raise boys and girls and that they are ready to do all they can to help. We would urge other labor organizations to come out in support of this work. Moral support is mighty fine and should be backed up with a 100% membership in the Welfare Association at one dollar each.

Some of the girls who are soliciting for the tag week report having received rebuffs from some men which were almost insulting. It is well that these fellows are not known or when known that they get away when they do for some pretty strong threats have been heard on the street. The girls are doing a good work and we are certain they are doing it in a lady-like manner or at least in a girl-like manner and as such they deserve consideration. In the soliciting which they are doing they are receiving a training which should help them throughout their lives. Any man who treats them graciously is helping them to realize their opportunity and showing himself a gentleman.

J. Q. Wilcox returned Monday from several weeks spent in New York markets. He is quite optimistic about the future and says that there are many indications that the crisis has passed. Call money is being quoted lower than it has been, certain bond issues which went begging some time ago were oversubscribed recently and the New England mills are opening up again. He found an abundance of most lines of merchandise with prices much lower than a year ago but in some classes of goods the tendency is upwards. This was most marked in silks. Mr. Wilcox says he bought a nice line of factory goods and that some of them have been received and others are coming in every day. He found lots of snow and rain in New York but pleasant weather west.

The County Commissioners are starting in to cut down the expenses of the County government. At the last meeting they abolished the office of Special Bridge Foreman. The commissioners thought they could hold contractors to their work without employing a special officer to do it. Again the Board voted against the application of the Public Welfare Board for an appropriation of $75 a month toward the salary of a Superintendent of Public Welfare. They did not have any complaint to make against the plan but did not consider that Lincoln County could afford that much money at this time for such a purpose. The members have other economies in mind and they will win the approval of all good citizens if they can hold the expenditures down to the lowest possible point until business of all kinds gets on a better basis.

In two communications printed in this issue the writers have called attention to the responsibility of the home. Fathers and mothers are seeking their own pleasures in increasing numbers and turning the children over to their own amusements or the care of society. Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls cannot relieve the parents of their responsibility. They merely supplement the work of the home. Mrs. Axtell says (speaking of people wanting some place to go on Sundays) "We would suggest from the way most of us spend our weeks, it wouldn't be amiss to GO HOME for a change on Sunday." Mayor Stretz says "The place to instill obedience and respect for authority is in the home and if it is properly done there the task of the school teacher and peace officer would be lessened over 90%."

Our Military Department being a branch of one of the largest military operators in America insures you getting the very latest in military for the least money. Come and be convinced. Block's.
