EDITORIAL.

Commissioner Welch has a plan which he will propose to the City Council in the near future whereby he thinks the city will be assured of an adequate supply of water. The city now owns a big pump with a capacity of 2100 gallons a minute. The auxiliary pump in the south part of the city is to send out 990 gallons a minute. The plan is to install two more pumps at the water station, each having a capacity of 1050 gallons a minute. The total will thus be over five thousand gallons a minute. The normal consumption on an ordinary summer day would be about 4500 gallons. This leaves a good margin. It also provides for an adequate supply of water in case the big pump were to break down and it gives an opportunity to relieve the strain on the big pump when necessary.

Curb parking went into operation Monday morning with no hitch and no trouble. Occasionally a driver stopped at his old stand in the center of the street but he quickly stepped on the proper stepper and pulled over to the curb. One man told us that he was sent down town early this morning to get two dollars worth of a certain kind of staple dry goods. He stopped in front of a store but was informed that the owner did not want anyone to park there so he went on up the street and parked in front of another store where he bought the required goods and went home. This may be an extreme case but it was given to us as a fact. While the Tribune editor is aware of certain inconveniences and some strong arguments against curb parking, he is in favor of giving it a thorough trial for several months before taking a positive stand against it.

Elsewhere we publish a call for a Democratic City convention. At the time of writing this we have not had a call for the Republican caucus but we understand one is to be called. The whole movement in American municipal politics in recent years has been away from domination by the national parties. The national parties have nothing in common with local politics. Such caucuses do not give the independent voter of the city a chance at nominations. It puts the whole matter into the hands of the politicians. And the politicians have not made a shining success of city politics in this country.

We claim to be independent of any political party. We expect to cover the caucuses as a newspaper man but we do not see how we could consistently go into either convention and take a part in its deliberations. Neither will have a platform; neither can claim any command of the local situation because of its national achievements. Each party has a local organization but so have the Odd Fellows and the Baptists and the Twentieth Century Club. The Elks might put up a candidate for Mayor, elect him and he might give us a good administration but we would not be satisfied with the method. Many cities would resent the interference of the Republican party or the Democratic party in the affairs of the city as much as they would resent the interference of the Catholics or the Methodists. The plan has been discarded and North Platte should get away from it as soon as possible.

But the caucuses have been called. We have decided on that method of nominations and every citizen who claims to have a preference for either party should be on hand at the appointed time and place and take his or her part in the business of the convention. It is probable that good candidates will be selected but it is not certain and unless good men are put up it will be the business of the respectable element of each party to see that good men are named otherwise.

Miss Gladys Stegall entertained a number of friends at a miscellaneous shower last evening at her home in honor of Miss Jeanette Sollars who is to be married tomorrow. Games were played during the evening after which a dainty lunch was served. The color scheme was pink and white and the rooms were decorated in pink and white roses. Miss Sollars was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

On Thursday at 12:15 P. M. those men who are interested in Scouting and who have not been able to attend the School of Instruction for Scoutmasters, will meet at the Oasis and during the lunch hour Mr. Barrball will give instruction in the principles of scouting. This is a fine opportunity for busy men. Next Thursday is the first.
