LOCAL CONCERN TO IMPROVE SERVICE WITH POWERFUL NEW MACHINERY

The North Platte Light & Power Company announces that it has just purchased from the General Electric Co. a 1000 Kilowatt Turbo-generator, with auxiliaries. This machine will more than double the capacity of the present plant. Delivery is expected in four months. This big generating unit is made necessary by the growing needs of North Platte. A conception of its capacity can be better had when it is realized that it has greater capacity than the combined capacity of the three present machines, two of which are large in themselves. The capacity of the plant after this big addition will prove ample reserve for many years to come. The construction of this new generating unit is interesting as it is a steam turbine and not built along the lines of the ordinary steam engine. Possibly its construction can better be illustrated by saying that it is built more like a water wheel than like a steam engine. This is the type of unit now universally adopted in the largest steam power plants of the country. It is also being used for propelling our large ocean liners and dreadnaught.

LYMAN LOCATED.

Conforming to the desires of the railroad company and to comply with the general terms of the railway commission decision, the townsite of Lyman is to be moved about 1400 feet from its present location. This is not yet confirmed by Chas. F. Lyman after a conference with the railroad people recently at Omaha when he represented the townsite company settling the general details. The buildings already erected at Lyman will be moved lots of equal value and corresponding location being furnished the owners. As a general proposition it would seem that this would reconcile any possible differences heretofore existing in the neighborhood, except with the men who wanted to sell a different townsite, as it comes to splitting the distance between the east and west locations originally contending. —Gering Courier.

MEANEST MEN

Dewey McConnell, south of Wallace, has an idea as to the meanest men in this wide wide world and we are about to agree.

Sunday he drove to Sutherland in search of farm hands for the harvest. Just temporary labor. He picked up two fellows who hired out to him and he brought them over here, fed them dinner and then supper and then put them to bed in a nice cool place and went to bed himself, dreaming of his work the next day.

Now, just a minute. Change scenes All ready. Scene II.

The following morn arriveth. Dewey finds no harvest hand but in his car finds a note with some vulgar inscriptions which would not be fit to reproduce here. They left in the night for places unknown.

Anyway Mr. McConnell came to town in search of the men but was unsuccessful. He was prepared to gently fetch the rascals back and face it or have the satisfaction of getting the dinner and the supper back.

Anyway, ain't they the meanest men in the world? We'll say they are. —Wallace Winner.
