EDITORIAL.

The premium list of the Lincoln County Fair says that a charge of from one to three dollars will be made each day during the fair for the use of stalls in the live stock barns. Secretary Souder says this is a mistake. There will be no charge. It is true that they make this charge at the Nebraska State Fair and at many of the other County Fairs but it is not the intention of the local officers to carry out this policy. In addition to giving rent free, each exhibitor will be given free straw or hay. The unusually large number of cattle and other live stock which is promised for the fair will make it an object for lovers of fine animals to attend.

Here is one we picked up the other day and pass it on. It may not be needed by Lincoln County housewives: Juicy fruit pies present unexpected difficulties to the home cook owing to their tendency to become soggy. Specialists in the experimental kitchen of the United States Department of Agriculture have found in the course of pastry baking experiments, that if the under crust is pre-baked until slightly brown, the pie will be much better. Another point brought out in connection with pastry making, especially in warm weather, is that speed in handling is an important factor if the housewife does not wish her dough to become soft and consequently difficult to roll and lift.

The other day we were having trouble with our folding machine. It worked wrong. There was something the matter that we could not find out. Our men did their best but the papers would not go through right. We were about at the end of our string when we remembered Ralph Correll. He is one of the men who are making the General Tire Co. a success here in North Platte. We went to that office and told our story. Mr. Correll at one time had been employed by the factory to set up the same kind of folders that we had. We told our story to Manager Lee and he graciously gave our message to Mr. Correll when he returned in a few minutes. He came over to our shop, looked over the machine, twisted a few little twisters, tightened up a few little things that needed tightening, reset some little parts that needed resetting and the thing went like a top. Such skill. We have been trying to think of some adequate reward for his service but so far have failed to get an idea that is within our means. We certainly appreciated the courtesy and the fine spirit shown by these men.

If I could paint a picture like I have it in my mind, I'd pick the choicest colors that my lovin' heart could find—and I'd spread 'em on the canvas, so that every tint would show, to portray the bed of marigolds, that Mother used to grow.

I allers thought them blossoms was the highest depths of art, which makes 'em sprout, in a faithful feller's heart. And I couldn't think of nothin' that I'd be more proud to show than Mother's bed of marigolds, she raised so long ago.

But Mother—and her marigolds—has vanished with the years—You seldom hear of marigolds, or see 'em anywheres.— And, while I respect the garden, for the comforts that it holds, it seems to lack completeness, when there ain't no marigolds.

There are a lot of small town business men who do not believe in advertising. Other believe in the value of advertising but don't think it worth the cost. Still others realize the value of advertising but hate to write the copy for the printer and so do not do much advertising. The story is told of Wm. Wrigley the millionaire chewing gum manufacturer that in conversation with a friend on a train he was told he was wasting a lot of money. "How?" said Mr. Wrigley. "Why, in advertising. Your product is so well known over the country that it is foolish to advertise any more." "My friend," said Mr. Wrigley, "do you know what would happen if I were to cut the engine off this train?" "Yes," said the friend, "the train would coast along for a while and then stop." "Right you are," said the gum manufacturer. "That is just what my business would do if I cut off the advertising. It is the engine which furnishes the motive power for my business."

Boxing is a pastime where no money is put up, where there is no reward for a knockout and where the sport is the sole and only object. When the winner receives a prize for a knock out it is called a prize fight. Prize fighting was legalized by the last legislature. It was put under the Department of Public Welfare and some stringent rules were made to keep it within bounds. The North Platte City Council passed an ordinance the other night legalizing it within the city limits of North Platte. The ordinance forbidding prize fighting in North Platte was found to be in conflict with the state laws and so it was repealed and that makes it legal. The state law says that a prize fight must be held under the auspices of an organization which is incorporated under the laws of the state of Nebraska and that this organization must be at least one year old. It provides that the fighters, the officials, the promoters and the managers must be licensed by the state and a license must be secured for each fight. In case of abuse the license is revoked. It is claimed that the whole matter is to be brought out of the dark, that a fight is to be called a fight and that it will be just what it is represented to be. The first fight under the new law will be held here on Labor Day.

RAIN
Ground is now in excellent condition for the seeding of fall wheat. Several big rains within the past six weeks have visited this section and last night this section was visited by a two inch rain. It was quite an electrical storm.—Wallace Winner.

NEW ROUTE
The postoffice inspector was here today and went over the proposed rural route north of the north river. As near as we could ascertain the prospects look very bright for granting the proposition, but it will be added to R. F. D. No. 1 and would make it a Motor Route of 44 miles in length. It will possibly be from 30 to 60 days before we will hear from the department.—Hershey Times.

CHANCE TO SMILE
The determination with which the grain dealers of the country have undertaken to protect the farmers from losses by a mistake of judgment in joining the wheat growers or the grain growers affords the gent on the fence a just cause and splendid opportunity for laughing. Grain handling is a legitimate business and grain handlers have performed a necessary part in the marketing of our crops. Just at the present time they are threatened with a loss of their occupation by the movement on the part of the farmers to do this work thru their co-operative associations and cooperatively between themselves. Quite naturally they are seeking a living, and their first object of attack is the new system proposed. What causes us to smile is the intense fervor and apparent earnestness with which they argue the matter and seek to drive their points home. The fact is the grain dealers have begun too late. They were warned repeatedly to take steps to rid their business of the parasites, the gamblers, but only a few of them were ever greatly concerned about it. Now the farmers are determined to go thru with their experiment of doing their own marketing. Telling them they will lose money by it is advice thrown to the winds. The co-operation that ought to have been the concern of the grain dealer in the past, meaning his own co-operation with the grain producer, is past trying out, at least just now.—State Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Seiberger leave tomorrow by auto for Sigourney, Iowa where they will visit relatives for a week or two. Enroute they stop at Kearney and Columbus to visit with friends. They will be accompanied by Austin Bedell, who will go from Sigourney, to South Bend, Indiana, to enter Notre Dame university.

Mildew Stains.
Wet the goods and put soap on the stained parts, then rub salt and lemon juice into the mildew. Afterward apply powdered chalk and expose article to the sun and air for several hours. Another method is to use the powdered chalk alone, rubbing well into the stains, or soaking it in buttermilk and rubbing salt into it, afterward laying the goods on the grass to dry in the sun.

Labrador's Name.
It is believed that Labrador was so named because Portuguese explorers thought the natives would make good laborers or slaves. The Labrador coast was discovered in the Tenth century by Lief, the Norseman, but no explorations were made. It was again discovered in 1497 by John Cabot. Explorations and settlements were made and the peninsula was named.

Play the Game.
Nothing matters so very much after all, if a man only plays a man's part. It is not so much what we call our success or our failures, but what we bring out of them, that counts. It is doing our best and doing it bravely until the end. Happiness and much that we call success are only by-products of life's great work.

Force of Gravity.
Force of gravity varies according to height above sea level and distance from the equator. As the force of gravity is 32.1612 feet a second in New York, 32.1528 feet a second in San Francisco and 32.1184 in Key West, an object would weigh most in New York and least in Florida.

How Ohio River Got Name.
The Allegheny and Ohio rivers were regarded by the French as one stream. The name given by them, La Belle Riviere (the beautiful river), is a translation of the Seneca term "Ho-he-yu," changed by the whites, both English and French, at a later date into Ohio.

Wise Words Concerning Advice.
Give thy friend counsel wisely and charitably, but leave him to his liberty whether he will follow thee or no; and be not angry if thy counsel be rejected, for advice is no empire, and he is not my friend that will be my judge whether I will or no.—Jeremy Taylor.

A BIRD IN HAND IS BETTER THAN TWO BIRDS BY MAIL

WHEN you order a piece of goods by mail, you know nothing about the quality of the article delivered until it has been tested by use. Having been used and found wanting, you have to go to the trouble of sending it a long distance back for long-distance satisfaction, a very rare bird indeed.

Trade in a home store and you get quality. The local merchant must carry quality or his neighbors will not trade with him. And if there has been bad quality accidentally, it is only a step into his store to show him the error.

The merchants of our town have both quality and price. If you will only figure out the common sense of it, you will find that it is cheaper to trade at home in the long run, and the short run, too.
