

OF INTEREST TO RURAL READERS

FARM BUREAU NEWS SERVICE SUPPLIES ITEMS FOR THE TRIBUNE READERS

Holt County farmers are butchering cattle and hogs on their farms and are marketing the beef and pork to people in the towns on regular routes the same as the milk man, selling meats at 17 to 18 cents per pound. Butchers in the towns where the farmers have gone into competition with them are reported to be doing very little business except in cured meats.

The State Serum Plant furnishes free of charge the blackleg vaccine prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It is a powder which looks much like tankage and is put up in 10 and 25 dose packets which may be sent through the mail. Directions are furnished with each order. Do not wait to vaccinate until after you have lost some calves.

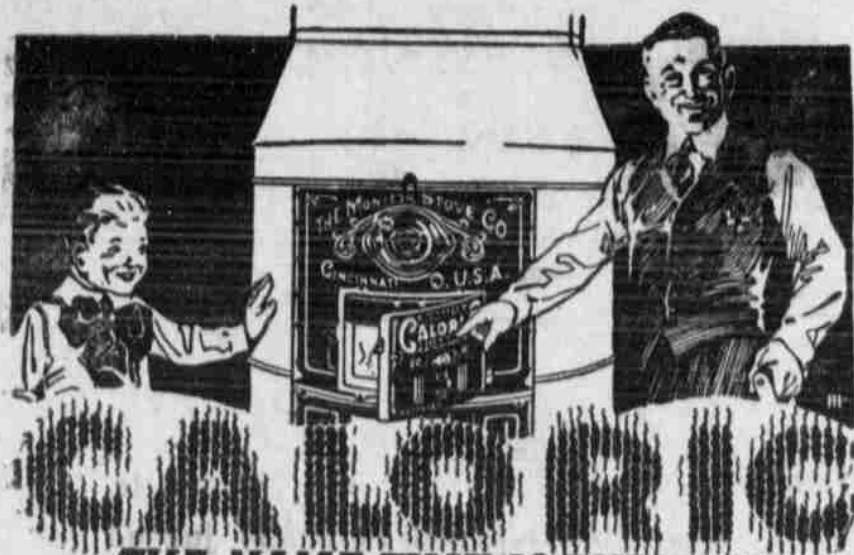

When ordering hog cholera serum always order enough to do the job well. If you have to cut down on the dose of serum in order to finish the herd serious results may follow. The superintendent of the State Serum Plant at the Agriculture College says that no bad results can come from overdosing with serum, and underdosing may mean failure.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation has received communications from many farmers who have quantities of corn and hay, but are unable to obtain sufficient finances to secure sheep and cattle for feeding purposes. These farmers have signified willingness to take feeders onto their farms to be paid for when finished for market at a price agreed upon, or are willing to feed the stock for a stated sum per pound gain.

Serum and virus are still available at the State Serum Plant, College of Agriculture, Lincoln, in spite of the heavy demand recently experienced. Either are available to residents of Nebraska at 1 cent per cubic centimeter. Unless check accompanies the order the shipment is sent C. O. D., since the state plant is prohibited from extending credit except to County Farm Bureaus and other state institutions.

The Saline county Farm Bureau is conducting a county membership campaign which is being handled largely by the county organization. J. N. Norton, chairman of the Nebraska Farm Bureau organization committee is spending the week in the county and has with him three experienced Farm Bureau membership men who will assist the local men in their efforts to make Saline county a 100 per cent Farm Bureau unit.

Too much corn, if fed alone, will produce decidedly unsatisfactory results. A grain ration consisting of corn only demands a heavy allowance of alfalfa, tankage or some other nitrogenous feed. A ration consisting of 1-3 corn, 1-3 oats and 1-3 barley with either alfalfa or tankage is good. Minerals such as charcoal, lime and woodashes may be kept before them at a profit. Keep the sows in rugged condition but not fat.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation headquarters is receiving many answers from its members throughout the state to its questionnaire relative to the disarmament conference. The answers show that the farmer is overwhelmingly in favor of world's disarmament as the final solution for world's peace and relief from exorbitant taxation. Many answers are also being received, showing that the farmers favor constitutional amendments looking to the creation of a state rural credit system and the classification of tangible property for taxation.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has re-opened the live stock rate case and will hold a hearing at Washington November 8. Clifford Thorne will represent the American Farm Bureau Federation and Judge S. H. Cowan will appear for the national live stock shippers' league. The Farm Bureau contends that the 20 per cent reduction in freight rates on live stock shipments should be applied to the short haul. The decrease on long hauls has already been ordered and amounts to a saving to shippers of $10,000,000. A 20 per cent decrease on short hauls would mean a further saving of $24,000,000 in live stock freight rates.

The Nebraska College of Agriculture will not handle picric acid, owing to the fact that the government will not ship picric acid in less than carload lots. This with the danger in handling and difficulty in making arrangements for reshipment, without providing a place of storage has been so great that it is not considered feasible to attempt the distribution. It cannot be stored in an ordinary ware house but must be stored under special precautions which would necessitate the erection of storage facilities remote from other buildings. These with other difficulties that would be met in financing and use of the explosive makes impractical its handling by the college.

A plan recently developed by the Nebraska College of Agriculture shows a combination smoke house, ice house and butchering room. The building is 14x30 feet and is of frame construction with the exception of the smoke house which is brick lined for fire protection.

At one end is situated the above-ground ice house 12x14 feet under which is a cold cellar. The central part of the structure forms the smoke house and the other end the butchering room containing the scalding vat and rendering vat. At this end is also situated the killing and bleeding platform.

This combination building forms a practical and convenient unit for the larger farms and ranches. For the cost of the blue prints (45 cents) the College of Agriculture will furnish the complete plans.

The care that the brood sows receive from now until farrowing time next spring will in a large measure determine whether or not they will produce healthy, vigorous litters, according to the swine specialists of the Nebraska Agriculture College.

Dry, clean bedded, well-ventilated quarters should be available for the sows at all times. They should be made to exercise freely, as exercise is absolutely essential to good success. There are several methods of making sows exercise. They may be fed some distance from the sleeping quarters. Feed may be scattered for them in a field or pasture. If watered at one place and fed at another, they will usually make several trips back and forth during the day. Clean water should always be available for the sows. They should not be on full feed for this prevents them from taking sufficient exercise and causes them to become heavy and fat.

The American Farm Bureau, through its counsel Clifford Thorne, has filed a statement before the Interstate commerce committee in the senate, contending that the portion of the transportation act which guarantees to the railroads returns of 5 1/2 to 6 per cent is unconstitutional. The basis for the contention is that shippers on prosperous railroad lines are compelled to pay excessive freight rates in order to help the weak railroads depending on industries which are producing very little business. Many railroads built into coal fields, lumber camps, or other places where the industries are nearly depleted must therefore be supported by the railroads serving the agriculture communities. In arguing the unconstitutionality of the provision, Mr. Thorne quotes freely from a letter written by Charles E. Hughes, now secretary to Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the association of railway executives, in which Secretary Hughes holds similar thought.

It pays to advertise a worthwhile article. In Pocatello, Idaho, the inspector in charge of the tuberculosis-eradication work of the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, came upon a dairyman whose herd had been tested and was under Federal and State supervision. He turned these facts to good account in advertising his wares, and greatly increased his business.

"Why pay your dairyman for keeping poor cows when you can get MILK from the MODERN DAIRY'S pure, healthy, clean cows at $3.75 per month, cash in advance? Cows all under Federal TB test. Milk all guaranteed pure and clean."

This poster was widely circulated in the district, and on his milk tickets the fact is reiterated that "Our dairy cows are tuberculosis-free by Government test." These methods have resulted in many other dairymen in the Pocatello district applying to the tuberculosis-eradication office at Boise, Idaho, for the testing of their herds.

ALL UNION BARBER SHOPS WILL CLOSE ALL DAY FRIDAY, NOV. 11, OPEN THE NIGHT BEFORE UNTIL 9:30.

Makes Motoring Economies Not Only Possible But Certain

With carbon cleaned out and a supply of fresh, clean Polarine, you go faster and further on a gallon of gasoline.

But that is not the greatest economy of a clean, properly lubricated motor. Freedom from wear on bearings and moving parts saves much more money. According to leading automotive engineers 90% of the total expense for motor repairs is caused by using lubricating oils of inferior quality or wrong body.

Polarine is made by special processes which render it free from excess carbon. It maintains a protecting oil cushion in the bearings and between moving parts, and a gas-tight and fuel-tight seal between piston rings and cylinders.

Polarine is made in four grades—light, medium heavy, heavy and extra heavy—but only one quality. Get the proper grade for your car next time by referring to Polarine chart at our Service Stations or dealers, and you will start cutting down motoring costs.
