EDITORIAL

There is no question but that the people of every school district in Lincoln county want more and better education. Every upstanding citizen is in favor of the schools. And his approval is not just perfunctory. He is really in earnest. He pays his school taxes with less grumbling than when he pays any other tax. He tolerates educational abuses with more patience than he does those in any other department of government. The taxpayer has seen his school taxes mount during the past ten years from ten mills on a dollar to one hundred mills on the same dollar. In North Platte the limit was 25 mills up to about 1915, then it went to 35 mills, then to 50 and now it is 100. That is the best evidence we have of the good will of the people toward education. It is the dollar evidence which is all-powerful in American life. But there are many who feel that we have reached the limit in education until there is a falling off in taxation somewhere else. What they want is more and better education for the same money. Some have suggested a vacation in extending our educational advantages, at least until we catch up.

Mrs. Homer Peterson will entertain the Chancery Bridge club at her home this evening.

The members of the Episcopal Young Peoples Association enjoyed a Christmas party last evening at their club house. The evening was spent in games and dancing. Each member received a Christmas gift of the Christmas tree. Decorations were in keeping with the holiday season as was the lunch served at the close of the evening.

Word was received in the city of the marriage of Mrs. Leafie Gray Dimnick and William Elliott, both of this city, on Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock. Both the bride and groom are well known in North Platte having lived in this city for a number of years. Mrs. Elliott is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Gray and has many friends in the city. Mr. Elliott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Elliott and is employed as a switchman in the local yards. After a few days in Denver Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will return to North Platte where they will make their future home.

The Royal Neighbors met on Wednesday afternoon of last week and elected officers for the coming year as follows: Mrs. E. W. Cross, orator; Mrs. C. Willerton, vice orator; Mrs. A. H. Able, past orator; Mrs. Hayes, chancellor; Mrs. H. P. Henckle, recorder; Mrs. B. Halligan, receiver; Mrs. C. O. Dedmore, marshal; Mrs. E. N. Johnson, inner sentinel; Mrs. John Scherman, outer circle; Mrs. Unice Moody, manager. Mr. Marie Almes and Dr. T. J. Kerr were elected physicians and Miss Gladys Henckle musician. At this meeting the beneficiary fund of James Myers who had been a member of the local camp for twenty years was paid. The Royal Neighbor lodge is planning a big meeting for December 28, when members expect several supreme officers and members from the surrounding camps.

When asked about the series of meetings which have just closed in the Christian church yesterday, Rev. Stevens, the local pastor said: "These meetings have been very gratifying in their results. There were 29 accessions while many have expressed themselves as having been very greatly helped by the splendid sermons of Mr. Harris. Something over $200 was left in the church treasury after all the expenses of the meeting had been met.

"Mr. Harris is a ready speaker, has a clear grasp of the Bible and presents his subject in a very pleasing manner. He is entirely free from the sensational but holds his audience by a clear and interesting presentation of truth. In his first sermon Mr. Harris said that he did not come to North Platte to 'hold a meeting,' but to be a 'worker together with God' and the people of the church, and he kept his word by bringing a wealth of sympathy and good fellowship with him."

Mr. Harris returned to Boulder Friday night where he will spend the holidays, after which he will go to Albia, Ia., to become pastor of the First Church of Christ.

Charles Bogue arrived in the city this morning from Omaha to spend a few days with his family.

Attorney Victor Halligan went to Lexington this morning to attend district court.

WRITER TELLS HOW TO CARE FOR DOG IN WINTER

All animals are more like human beings in their feelings than is generally supposed, and domesticated animals are often very much so. To say that you and I should live just as did our primitive ancestors would be no more unreasonable than to expect your dog to endure the same hardships and possess the same constitution as his relative the wolf or the Eskimo dog.

Some people try to excuse neglect and abuse of their dog by saying that he is naturally a lardy animal and must be kept strong and tough. There is some truth in this; but if the animal has lost his hardihood through coddling, or never possessed any, because of having been raised indoors and petted excessively, then it is no more "natural" for him to endure exposure and hardship than it would be for his master to trot around half clad like a Fiji Islander or eat raw meat like an Eskimo.

We marvel at the dog's intelligence largely the result of his long, continuous association with man, yet sometimes forget that his physical nature, too, must have undergone great change. Do not be satisfied with a knowledge of your dog's breed; when possible, know what kind of life his immediate ancestors lived. If your pet comes of an indoor "family," dogs that exercised little and ate much, he will not be very robust. If you want him for an outdoor pal, be reasonable, as you would desire your parents to be with you under similar conditions, and go at the hardening work gradually.

It is not at all uncommon for dogs to suffer with cold in the winter. Even the animal that has never been inside much will feel a sudden change in the weather, and should be provided for. Put some extra bedding in his kennel, and see that some of the air holes which were necessary in the summer are closed. If you have no comfortable kennel for your pet, bring him into the house for a night or two until you can fix up outdoor quarters.

Remember, too, that the dog—again like you and me—will feel the same degree of cold far more at one time than at another. If he is not very well, or is too thin from over exercise, worms, or digestive disorders, he will suffer keenly, perhaps when you, in your warm coat, are comfortable. Because dogs are known to tremble from nervousness or restraint at times some people ascribe all trembling to these and similar causes. Speaking generally, the average dog, when idle will get cold if the weather is such as to make his master bundle up. If he has been running, especially if through streams, and is allowed to cool off quickly and sit around in a raw wind, he will chill, take cold, and probably be ill—just like a person. Not a few hunting dogs have contracted catarrh in exactly this way.

Take the dog into shelter before he cools in the wind, or blanket him—do something to keep him comfortable until his temperature is again normal. Think of your dog often; if he is a good pal, treat him as such. He will repay you with boundless loyalty—with his very life if necessary.—E. Enbanks, in Our Dumb Animals.

THE MOUNTAINS BROUGHT TO YOU.

As has been their annual custom, the Gothenburg Community club will again this season bring to the people of central Nebraska two of the world's leading musical artists in recital.

On January 6th they will present in joint recital Irene Pavloska, operatic Mezzo-Soprano, and Elias Breeskin, violinist.

Miss Pavloska has been with the Chicago Opera company for the past four seasons and in the characterization of the many roles she has played, her voice combined with her versatility has attracted an ever growing clientele and has established her in a leading position among present day mezzo-sopranos. Her triumphs on the operatic stage are many and she is now adding to them the laurels of concert successes.

Mr. Breeskin, the highly gifted Russian-American violin virtuoso, was an associate of Caruso on his last American tour, and his solos on the programs with the world's greatest tenor were invariably rewarded by demands for double and triple encores. He stands in the front rank of violin virtuosos.

Such a musical treat and opportunity to hear two of the world's leading artists is seldom granted to those outside of our larger eastern cities and should be taken advantage of by all lovers of music.

The price is $2.00. The committee in charge have made arrangements to reserve seats for all out-of-town people before the chart is opened to the home folks.

Program of recital:

1. Concerto in D minor... Wieniawski
Allegro Moderato.
Andante.

c. The Last Hour... Kramet
d. What's In the Air?... Eden
Miss Pavloska.

Mr. Rasmussen lost a nice team of horses this week but was unable to tell the cause. Lots of stock has been poisoned in the corn stalks lately but he says they were not in the stalks. A week or so ago E. R. Ferrrell lost a nice herd bull and he and T. B. Agen also lost three or four head of cattle in the corn stalks. Several others of the community have had one or two die from the same cause.—Wallace Winner.

Flexible Arch— Like the Foot

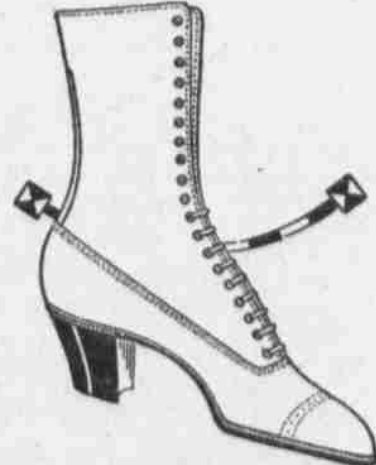

Do you know that the arch of your foot is flexible? It is composed of small bones which flex every step you take. Muscles and ligaments hold the bones in place.

Do you realize that the ordinary shoe has a piece of steel concealed in the arch, making the shoe stiff right at the point where your foot must flex? Weak, or fallen arches come when the muscles and ligaments fail to hold the arch bones in their normal position.

You can have strong, healthy feet by wearing Cantilever Shoes. They have a flexible arch like your foot. There is no metal in the shank to stiffen the shoe where it ought to flex.

This flexibility permits your muscles to exercise and the blood to circulate properly. Your feet strengthen. You enjoy walking—and you don't mind standing, for the Cantilever Shank supports the foot restfully.

The toes are not crowded. Your posture is good, for the heels are of proper height to be healthful—and stylish! The comfort of Cantilever Shoes is doubly enjoyable because because they are good looking and fashionable for daytime or semi-dress occasions.

We are the exclusive agents for Cantilever Shoes in North Platte.
