OF INTEREST TO RURAL READERS

FARM BUREAU NEWS SERVICE SUPPLIES ITEMS FOR THE TRIBUNE READERS

The women's section of the state convention of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation which is to be held at Lincoln January 5-6 in connection with organized agriculture has been very fortunate in securing Mrs. Chas. Schuttler of Farmington, Missouri for its principal speaker. Mrs. Schuttler is chairman of the women's committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the most important position in the women's section. She has been very active in farm organization work even long before the organization of the Farm Bureau and will have a message of interest to every farm woman who will have the privilege of hearing her at Lincoln.

Chas. E. Gunnels, treasurer of the American Farm Bureau Federation and head of farm organization work, who will be the main speaker at the state convention of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation on January 5 is not a stranger in Nebraska. In fact Mr. Gunnels is a native of this state and has reached a high place among men of affairs through sheer effort, ability and perseverance. Gunnels was raised at Crete and educated at the state university. He started his career as an educator in Agricultural line, becoming county agricultural agent at Seward going from there to director of extension at the state agricultural college. From there he was called to Washington to take an important place in the state relations service and was in that work when the American Farm Bureau Federation secured him for an official position. His work in the Farm Bureau has had much to do with the big things that have been accomplished by the organization during the past year. He is an interesting and fluent speaker, knows his subject, and will have something to tell every Nebraska farmer—something that he should know.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau has joined with the national organization in urging passage of the Fordney bill providing for the appropriation of money to purchase 10,000,000 bushels of corn for relief of Russian famine stricken districts. The Farm Bureau is asking that the amount be doubled, and that it also include dairy products. Telegrams have been sent by the Nebraska Farm Bureau to the entire Nebraska delegation at Washington and favorable replies have already been received from most of the congressmen. Jeffers, of the first district, Kinkaid of the sixth and Andrews of the fifth have expressed their intention of getting behind the bill, according to the Nebraska Farm Bureau headquarters. "Nebraska and other middle western states have a great surplus of corn", said a prominent farm bureau man, "and it seems that Russia has just reached the point where civilization demands that she be given assistance. The only thing that can be done immediately is to furnish them food, and there is no better food for them than this surplus Nebraska corn that some farmers are even using for fuel. At the same time we are reducing the present surplus of corn that is depressing the export market."

Most of the delegates to the state convention of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation to be held in Lincoln Jan. 5 and 6 in connection with "organized agriculture", have been selected by the county farm bureaus in the forty six organized counties. Each county will send one man and one woman delegate making the voting membership approximately 100. However word is coming to the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation office that many counties are sending large delegations so that the delegates themselves will form a small minority of those who will be on hand to see the shaping of the Farm Bureau program for 1922. The holding of the Farm Bureau state convention in connection with the week of "organized agriculture" which has become the biggest thing in the way of an agricultural meeting held in the state each year, will in a great measure help to bring into the convention many who could not attend otherwise.

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

There are some people in North Platte who do not know the descent way to treat people over the phone. The worst is when they call the wrong number. Instead of looking up the number in the book they try to remember it or call on someone to remember it for them. If anyone tells them a number they call for it and usually it is the wrong one. When I answer a phone ring and it is not me that they want, they should say so politely. Some people act smartly about it and tell you to get off the line or something ill bred like that. I am still mad over having to get out of bed when the bell rang several times and then someone says "Hang up, I don't want you." Mr. Tout, such people don't deserve to have the use of a phone and when we call up the telephone girl she never knows who it was. I believe in politeness over the phone and so I always say, "Excuse me, that is the wrong number." And I am sure I have the right number before calling for it. I hope you will print this letter without my name as some people might think I am an old fogey.

The Phone Crank.

TRY "DWINdle DANCE," LADIES!

The "Dwindle Dance" is the very latest thing for young ladies who fear they are becoming too plump, and the above picture shows one of the movements. Knees not bent and hands flat on the floor. The "Dwindle Dance" movements are practiced best to a tune on the home phonograph, if you have one.

"Service"

The men and women who make up the organization of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company are doing their best to give a service that will be thoroughly satisfactory to telephone users.

By "service" we mean not only prompt, accurate work by our operators, but courteous business relations, speedy repairs, accurate bills—in short, complete satisfaction in your every dealing with us.

We believe that we are giving good service; but we realize that our service is good only if it satisfies our patrons.

If our service does not satisfy you in every way, we shall appreciate it greatly if you will let us know.
