VICTOR HERBERTS "ANGEL FACE" TO BE HERE MONDAY

The fact is frequently overlooked but it is a fact never-the-less that our old friends "Words and Music" are tremendously important factors in musical comedy.

In "Angel Face" which will be seen at the Keith Theatre Monday evening, Jan. 23, Victor Herbert, who wrote the music is at his best, and the Smith brothers, Harry B. and R. B. have turned out a book which is genuinely funny.

It has been customary to say, and generally with justice that the tale of a musical comedy is negligible, but in "Angel Face, it is very much in evidence. In fact, it is as complicated as a French farce with everyone including the chorus having a part in the unfolding. Space does not permit giving the details of its vast ramifications. An indication of the up-to-date quality of the plot, however, is found in revelation that the basis of fun is the recent alleged discovery of Dr. Serge Veronoff, dealing with the restoration of youth of persons in advanced years by the grafting of chimpanzee glands. This process has been modified into a sort of Ponce de Leon elixir, and the results of its taking are novel and ludicrous.

Mr. Herbert has written a scene of many melodic delights, with a happy mingling of orchestral and vocal comedy sentiment and romance. The lively, "I Might Be Your Once in a While" is one of the many hits.

Added to the above there is a company of youths, charm and ability featuring Marguerite Zender, Nora Kelly and John E. Young in addition to the above company including Joe Mack, William Cameron Sarah McVicker, Bertha Belmore, Ethel Martelle, Agnes Patterson, Lillian Young, Evelyn Young, Evelyn Grieg, Gail Mack, Nell Moore, John Reinhard, Willard Hall and Bruce Buddington.
