Voices That Will Live Forever.

It is not generally known, but there are many of the leading personages of the last century whose voices will never die. These are records which are part of the Edison collection at Menlo Park, N. J. When the Edison machine for reproducing speech was perfected, the inventor sent a representative around the world for the purpose of interviewing famous people and persuading them to speak into a phonograph.

Thus, Gladstone can be heard congratulating Edison on his wonderful inventive genius. King Edward expresses his astonishment and admiration at being able to hear voices reproduced by a machine. Tennyson reads a verse from one of his poems. Browning tries to recite and fails. Among others, Cardinal Manning, the duke of Clarence, Lord Salisbury and the duke of Cambridge contributed to this wonderful collection, which cost a great deal of money.

Lawsuit of Long Duration.

The longest drawn out lawsuit on record in legal history is between two neighboring French villages in Jura-Charcillat and Meusia. The case had its beginning in the Thirteenth century. In 1222 a certain knight of the Holy empire divided a certain wood between the two villages. Although the wood is of small value, the two villages engaged in a controversy over the exact line of division and a lawsuit, which has lasted through the centuries to the present age, was begun.

During the past century there have been many judgments rendered, all of which have been appealed from. In one court decision the advantage was given to Meusia. Charcillat appealed and the case was finally sent back to the court of civil appeal at Nancy, where last December Charcillat was awarded a third of the wood instead of a fifth, as settled before. Each of the towns was condemned to pay its own costs since 1824. Meusia has appealed from the award.

The Family Siver.

"Whenever I'm invited out to dinner or one of those society affairs, you can leave it to me to make some bad break." Spud Murphy complained bitterly.

"What's the trouble, Spud?" asked a sympathetic friend.

"Well, the girl asked me up to her house for dinner. She told me they were high up in society, and that they had the family name on all the silver and napkins."

"Well, how did you get in Dutch?"

"The first thing I did when we sat down at the table was to take a squint at the silver and napkins, and then the girl got sore because every time I spoke to her father I called him 'Mr. Pullman.'—The Leatherneck.

Voices of the Dunes.

The voices of the dunes are in many keys. The cries of the gulls and crows—the melodies of the songsters—the wind tones among the trees—the roar of the surf on the shore—the soft rustling of the loose sands, eddying among the beach grasses—the whir of startled wings in the ravines—the piping of the frogs and little toads in the marshy spots—the chorus of the katydids and locusts—the prolonged notes of the owls at night—and many other sounds, all blend into the greater song of the hills, and become a part of the appeal, in this land of enchantment and mystery.—Earl H. Reed.

ACT ENDS AGE-OLD ENMITY

Students of History See Significance in Recent Move of the Dean of Westminster.

There is more than meets the eye in the announcement that the dean of Westminster has assigned a particular stall on the north side of the choir for the use of the mayor of Westminster whenever he visits the abbey in either a public or a private capacity. The dean's kindly act removes another obstacle to the full friendship which should exist in Westminster between the ecclesiastical and the civic authorities. Centuries ago there was no love lost between them. The abbey authorities were a powerful body; the citizens of Westminster were struggling to be free, in a municipal sense. It was the cellarer of the abbey who built the Gatehouse prison late in the Fourteenth century and installed the abbot janitor as its keeper. It was the abbot who had custody of all prisoners captured within the liberties. It was the abbot who, when debts were owing to the monastery, did not recover them by ordinary process of law, but sent out his "common pressers" to distraint on the debtor's goods. When Bryan Talbot, a gentleman by birth, fell into arrears with his rent, he had to surrender his "large bedsted legged," his "hull old Ship Chest," his water-tub and his "blew pylon for a woman." Not until the middle of the Fifteenth century did self-government manifest itself in a society of citizens, and that is a long way from the gift to the mayor of a stall in the abbey.—Christian Science Monitor.
