

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer.

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement

OBJECT LESSON FOR YOUTH

Old Gentleman Couldn't See Why the Youngster Considered He "Had No Chance."

Wealth is variously estimated in different parts of the country.

Jimmie Glower had grown to manhood in one of the most inaccessible little country villages imaginable.

Wearing at last at the monotony of his life, he grew eager to leave the fields and lanes of his childhood.

His father was a quiet old man of such local renown and stoutly opposed to his son's desire to go to the great and wicked cities.

"But what chance has a young fellow got to get on in a little place like this, I'd like to know?" gloomily demanded Jimmie.

"What chance?" ejaculated his father. "Why, just look at me, my son. When I first came here I didn't have nothing—not nothing! And just look at me now—I have got nine dogs!"

Insight.

Find a man whose words paint you a likeness, you have found a man worth something; mark his manner of doing it, as very characteristic of him. In the first place, he could not have discerned the object at all, or seen the vital type of it, unless he had, what we may call, sympathized with it—had sympathy in him to bestow on objects. It is his faculty, the man of a business faculty, that he discerns the true likeness, not the false, superficial one, of the thing he has got to work in. And how much of mortality is in the kind of insight we get of anything! the eye seeing in all things what it brought with it the faculty of seeing!—Carlyle.

Then Dad Said!

Mr. Brown had got into the habit of fighting his cigar after dinner, puffing at it for a while, and then laying it down on the ash tray. Later he would relight it and finish his smoke. Often three or four cigar-ends would be on the tray at once.

One day his little boy, sitting near, watched his dad light one of the small ends, and said:

"How do you like that one, dad?" "This, my boy, is a very, very good cigar—blowing long puffs into the air."

"I thought you'd like it, dad; I found it in the gutter outside."

BEST SEED PEAS ARE PROFITABLE

Introduction of Undesirable Product Might Ruin Entire Output of Factory.

ALASKA VARIETY VERY RISKY

All Plants Must Ripen Uniformly and All Pods Must Be in Usable Condition at One Time—Other Canning Crops.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mixed or impure stock, under modern methods of harvesting and handling the pea crop for canning may result in the introduction of undesirable seed which may ruin the entire output of a canning factory, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The canner should buy direct from the seed-growing seedsmen rather than from a jobber. Particularly in the case of smooth Alaska peas, which furnish 55 per cent of the canned peas on the market, there is risk taken if a canner buys seed the history of which cannot be traced. The canner is in a much safer position if he buys only from seed growers who control their own stocks.

Must Be Productive. To be a good canning pea, a variety must, first of all, be productive; all plants must ripen uniformly; all pods on individual plants must be in usable condition at one time—that is, none must be too ripe or too immature; the peas must remain green after processing. The introduction of the viner, which eliminates hand-picking of the pods, has had a decided influence on the varieties of peas used for canning.

The return on a planting of peas for seed is far less than that on either corn or tomatoes, two other important canning crops, and the utmost care is necessary throughout the growth of the seed crop to discover and weed out undesirable types of volunteer plants or those due to warehouse mixture, so as to keep the stock uniform. The seedsmen sows about three bushels of peas per acre, getting a return of 15 bushels. Three of these keys, but lost 50 of them in a sudden hail storm. The rest she sold as breeders, advertising them in a farm journal. They netted her $900, or an average of $12.50 each.

This year she started with the same number of breeders and obtained 145 young poults. Unfortunately one of the farm hogs was fond of turkey, and destroyed all but 51 of the flock before the depredations were traced to him. At about $12 apiece, however, the remaining 51 brought $625.

Other instances of successful turkey raising reported by the extension agent of Greer county show a total profit of $2,418.90 on the sale of 210 turkeys and 12 dozen eggs out of 229 turkeys in different flocks.

Oldham County, Kentucky, Live Stock Owners Given 46 Certificates in One Day.

In one day recently the United States Department of Agriculture issued 46 emblems of recognition to live stock owners in Oldham county, Ky., who are now using purebred sires exclusively for all classes of live stock kept.

This county has eradicated scrub sires from about half of the territory in the county, according to a report received from Wayland Rhoads, extension specialist of the Kentucky Agricultural college.

Wayne county, Ky., likewise is active in replacing scrub sires with good purebreds. The department recently issued "better-sires" emblems to 44 Wayne county stock owners. Bull sales are being held by local breeders in both counties to bring about a wider distribution of good purebred bulls.

INITIAL SEASON OF CLOVER It May Be Pastured From Middle to Close, but Not Too Close—Cure Hay in Shock.

The growth produced the first season by sweet clover is similar in quality to alfalfa. It may be pastured from the middle of the season to the close, but should not be pastured so close as to injure the plants. The growth the second season is much coarser and if used for hay should be cut before it reaches a height of 30 inches. A high stubble should be left as the second growth starts from buds on the cut-over stems. If cut too close to the ground, no second growth will be produced. The hay should be cured in the windrow or shock to prevent the loss of leaves and too rapid curing.

SHEEP DESTROY MANY WEEDS Animals Devour Noxious Plants in Pastures, Grain Fields and Clear Fence Rows.

Sheep eat more weeds than any other class of live stock, except goats. Sheep will eat ninety per cent of all troublesome weeds. They will destroy weeds in pastures, in grain fields and corn fields after harvesting, and clear the fence rows. However, sheep are not such scavengers that they can thrive on refuse and weeds alone. In order to get sheep to eat leaves on shrubs, the tenderer grasses must be scarce. Goats are better adapted to clearing brush land than are sheep. Some farmers consider sheep necessary just as a means of controlling weeds.

PUT TREES ON WASTE SPOTS Conditions Demand That All Land Should Produce Something—Trees Are Favored.

Modern conditions demand that all the wastes and leaks be eliminated, and this means that all the land should produce something. It is not always possible to make every portion of the farm area yield annual crops, but in such cases one may wisely and profitably try trees. If one-twentieth of each farm tract were set aside for forestry, in time there would be timber to spare.

A great many cliffs and hillsides along our many rivers and streams are fit for little else, and hill land that is very stony may be planted to post-timber trees with much profit. Black locust and catalpa are the most profitable for posts, the locust being given the preference on account of its manner of growth being smoother and the quality of timber the very best.

TURKEYS YIELD GOOD PROFIT IN OKLAHOMA

Woman Substitutes Purebreds for Scrub Stock.

Despite Heavy Losses to Flock, Due to Conditions That Might Not Occur Elsewhere, Return of $1,525 Is Made.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A return of $1,525 from turkeys in two seasons was obtained by an Oklahoma woman in spite of heavy losses in her flock, due to conditions that might not occur elsewhere. The Greer county extension agent convinced her that it would pay to follow the advice of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural college and substitute purebreds for her scrub stock. He also gave her information on the management of her flock.

She started with 10 hens and 1 tom of the Mammoth Bronze variety. From these she raised 122 young tur-
