REGARD FOR HEROES' WISHES

Judge Neterer of Seattle Holds Request of Soldier Killed in War Demands First Consideration.

Is the last wish of a soldier dying on the field of battle more to be respected than legal forms decked out with sealing wax? The American Legion thinks it is. Recent cases before the courts have brought the question to the front. According to Federal Judge Neterer of Seattle, the wish of a soldler killed in battle is higher law than any departmental regulation. According to this decision Agnes Claffy, sixteen-year old niece of Clarence Swank, is awarded the residue of Swank's estate, amounting to $9,000. Swank was killed in France. Departmental red tape cluttered up the case on account of the death of Swank's mother, the original beneficiary. In handing down his decision Judge Neterer cited precedents extending back to the days of Caesar and the legionnaires of ancient Rome.

The latest case is that of Miss Elenore R. Knapp of New York, whose claim to the estate of Ernest Charlton Mason of the One Hundred and Sixth United States infantry has been contested by Mason's uncle. In a muddy dugout before a general advance against the Germans, Mason told his buddle, Oscar Westgate, the story of his engagement, and added that he now felt that in this advance he was slated to "go West." "If I don't come through this," he said, as they started over the top, "I want Elenore to have all my estate."

Mason, among others, was cut off and captured by the Germans. They were taken to the same prison camp. For ten days, a bunkle testified, Mason lay ill on the ground with influenza. Then he was taken away in an ambulance and his death reported. Eventually a death certificate was issued by the United States government. But the attorneys for Mason's uncle contested the case to the extent of arguing that the "proof of death" was unsatisfactory.

The justice of the soldier's latest will has been upheld in startling fashion by the highest courts of England recently. An English major of infantry died alone in his lodgings in London directly after the armistice He left no legal will. Across the front of a photograph of his flance he had hastily scrawled: "All to her." The case was brought before the highest tribunal of England and the "will" stood.
