OUR HARRY
W. H. Cramer and his assistant have been installing a Winters patent air pump at the Farmers Co-Op elevator this week. This is the first one of this kind put up at Paxton. It handles the heaviest truck or the lightest wagon with the same ease, without a jar or jolt to the truck. It is a great improvement and a time and labor saver.—Paxton Times.

CONVENTION
The annual convention of the Lincoln County Sunday School Association will be held in Brady on Sunday, August 27th.

The local committee is working on the program and arrangements details of which will be announced next week.

This is the first time Brady has had the honor of entertaining a County Convention for many years and every citizen should make a special effort to assist the entertainment committee in extending a hospitable welcome to our visitors.—Brady Vindicator.

THIRTY-EIGHT BUSHELS

The very biggest yield of rye reported to this office this year was that of R. L. Lorenzen who had eleven acres that turned in just 419 bushels, an average of 38 bushels per acre. Mr. Lorenzen says that it took 3 1/2 pounds of twine for each acre and although he cut the rye about eighteen inches high, the bundles were four and five feet in length. It bothered Lussato Brothers threshing machine to keep shelling the straw and grain out of so much straw and the straw pile had the appearance of having been taken off of a forty acre field.—Garden City News News.

PUSH IT

Mark Burke, who is surveying for the irrigation ditch in Keith and Lincoln counties informs us that eight miles south of Sutherland 50,000 acres feet of water can be stored. From this reservoir the country can be irrigated in all directions. At the estimated cost per acre the wheat crop for one year would more than pay for the irrigation project. Our farmer friends should not stop until the project is carried to completion. If nothing is done the counties to the east will secure the water right. In that case it would take twenty or more years to get what they can now have by a little push.—Sutherland Courier.

MACNIDER

A large delegation including the City Band turned out Friday morning for train 16, on which the National Commander Rotche, but he had fallen Hanford MacNider was enroute to Omaha. The local Legion post had been requested to turn out by State Commander Rotche, but he had failed to tell any of Mac's gang, and as a result the commander was trying to make up lost sleep, when the train passed through this city. On making his appearance at Cozad he said he was sorry to have passed up demonstrations at North Platte and Gothenburg, but he had supposed no one was aware of the fact he was in the state.—Gothenburg Times.

OFF TO IRELAND

Hugh Reilly met with a serious accident last Friday. He was and trailing a cultivator. One of driving a team hitched to a wagon the cross lines caught under the end of the wagon tongue and Hugh walked down the tongue between the horses to release it. The team became frightened and started to run and Hugh lost his balance and fell between the horses. One of them kicked him, then the wagon passed

POEM BY UNCLE JOHN

OUR ARCH-ENEMY

I view the fiend of Discontent with shudder and alarm. . . . I realize the vast extent of this old monster's harm. No walk of life may be immune from pangs of discontent,—from barren wastes of sandy dune, to Doric battlement.

It spreads among the favored few, where fortune left her smile, and scatters seeds of strife anew, among the rank and file. . . . It strikes the soldier, late returned from victory's bloody field, and where the patriot fires have burned, the arch-fiend stands revealed.

The tenets writ in sight of God, to guide our glorious land, must feel the foul, blasphemous rod, in discontentment's hand. . . . Mid blessings, countless as the stars, where heav'n and home are blest, the foe of mankind bursts his bars,—the curse of discontent!

over his body and after that he got tangled up in the cultivator shovels. He was unconscious for some time and also received some bad cuts on the body and a badly strained back. He says that as soon as he recovers he is going to Ireland and get in the revolution going on there as he does not think it would be any worse than farming in the sand hills.—Brady Vindicator.

BIG PICNIC

Something like a thousand people enjoyed the picnic at the Scotts Bluff experiment farm last Thursday. A number of interesting sports were included on the program, the younger generation generally taking the active part in these events. Among these events was the baby show in which little June McPherson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alo McPherson of Mitchell was the premium babe out of the list of seventeen with Duane Wildy second and Stephen Skeen third. The music was furnished during the day by the Scotts-bluff band, and Superintendent J. A. Holden was in his element conducting visitors over the handsome and well kept premises and giving them opportunities to inspect the results of various agricultural experimentations.—Gering Courier.

ACT QUICKLY

Do the right thing at the right time.
Act quickly in time of danger.
In time of kidney danger, Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective. Ask your neighbor! Plenty of North Platte evidence of their worth.
Mrs. M. E. Wood, 208 E. 8th street North Platte says, "I always have a word of praise for Doan's Kidney Pills. They have done me a great deal of good. I had a very severe attack of kidney complaint and suffered terribly for awhile. My back hurt me so I couldn't get around at all. A neighbor told me how Doan's Kidney Pills had cured her and I took three boxes. It was not long before they relieved me. I cannot praise Doan's Kidney Pills too highly after what they have done for me."

method should not be used on wheat, unless one is absolutely certain that there are no smut balls present. To find out if they are present a small quantity of the wheat may be poured into a tub of water and stirred. If the smut balls are present they will come to the surface. Even if only a few are present the floating or soaking method should be used.

In common with all the other colleges of the University of Nebraska, the Agricultural College classes in agriculture and home economics will begin on Thursday, September 14. Registration of new students will take place on the city campus of the University, beginning Friday, September 8. The requirements for admission to the Agricultural college are practically the same as for all the other Colleges of the University.

In conjunction with the Agricultural College the University operates two secondary schools which give instruction in both agriculture and home economics to students who have completed the eighth grade or its equivalent.

The western school of Agriculture located at Curtis will open registration on Thursday, September 7 and classes will begin the following Monday. Students must be at least fourteen years of age to be admitted to this school.

The eastern school of Agriculture, located on the Agricultural College campus at Lincoln, will open Monday, October 9. Sixteen years is the minimum age for admission to this school.
