EDITORIAL

John said—"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

McElroy said—"I believe in America because she thinks in terms of justice, not of gain and holds her noble heritage the Right of all."

One item which almost escaped notice in the Tribune is the departure of Miss Esther Antonides for Boston. She has been there for several weeks now, enrolled in the summer session of Boston University. She is specializing in economics. Boston University is one of the eastern higher institutions which is coming to the front. It has over 900 students in its summer school and they are registered from China, France, Siam, Portugal, Puerto Rico, Canada and the Philippines. It is a privilege to attend such a school even for one term.

Before this writing is on the press we will be away on a vacation trip which promises to be one of the best we have ever taken. In company with our father we are off to the mountains to spend a few days. We have been privileged to see Pike's Peak a number of times and to climb over her rocky foothills. Our father is making his first trip west after living in Nebraska for over fifty years. Together we are going to live in the shadow of the grandeur of the Rockies for a week and together as father and son we are going to enjoy the cool breezes from her everlasting snows. Other members of the family with the regular Tribune force are going to get out the next two numbers of the Tribune and we predict they will be fully as good as if we were on the job. We are off.

Manager Cooper of the local telephone exchange took the editor through the plant one day last week and we learned more about the telephone business than we supposed there was to be learned. We saw the operators at work and they were busy. We saw why it sometimes takes a few moments to get a connection and we were there when the habitual bully called "Why don't you wake up?" to the girl who had more than she could attend to just then. We saw the wire room and where the trouble is taken care of. Then we were taken to the telegraph room where they relay the transcontinental messages by telegraph over the telephone lines. It is worth the time of anyone to go up and see the systematic way in which every part of the telephone service is handled. Thanks Mr. Cooper.

Dr. McCabe is gone. His honest face will be seen no more among us; his rugged personality has passed out. He is no longer the coadjutor of the young and the inexperienced. No more can his friends go to him for advice and help. His place is vacant and he is gone. But his memory is with us and strengthens us. He was a strong man and fit. He kept the faith of his fathers. His God was ever present and in his later years it ripened his character and mellowed his disposition. His church meant much to him and he was not ashamed to show it. He hated shame and corruption. He could not make friends with those who were not playing the game of life honestly. That is the Dr. McCabe we knew. The editor served with him in the school administration. He was elected a member of the Board of Education as a champion of a class of people. He did not break faith with them nor did he make himself offensive to others. No better member of the Board of Education ever served the people of this city. He was conscientious and honest. When he thought the rates of insurance were too high he held up his approval of the bills until the matter was arranged to his satisfaction although his friends were on the other side. When he found a teacher who was not what she should be, he voted against her retention in the teaching force even if she had influential friends who took her part. He was liberal and just. Although he was a strong adherent of the Catholic faith, the writer does not remember of its ever being mentioned in connection with the schools and no teacher of that denomination ever received his support because of her religion. He had a way of looking at school matters in a business-like manner and with a judgement that was impartial.

Many a time we have personally sought his office for counsel and advice in school matters and we were always received with cordiality and given the fruits of his ripened judgement. This is the Dr. McCabe we knew and loved and the man we miss and will remember.

Possible Customers All

The folks who pass your store have the money to buy what you have to sell. But though you may have good merchandise and a pleasing window, without attractive window and store lighting you can't hope to draw the trade of these people.

Light is a Magnet

Nothing brings new customers into a store more quickly than a well lighted window. Our Electrical Advertiser will be glad to assist you in planning an effective lighting system for your store.

De Molay hold picnic.
The members of the local De Molay and their lady friends will hold a picnic tomorrow evening at Lamploughs lake.

Entertains
Jack Stebbins entertained eighteen little friends yesterday afternoon at a party in honor of his sixth birthday. Games were played during the afternoon after which a delicious luncheon was served.

Entertains at Picnic
Mrs. Lawrence Enzlinger entertained twelve guests at a picnic north of town Sunday evening in honor of her sister Miss Dorothy Marsh of Grand Island who has been visiting her for the past month.

Entertained at Surprise Party
A surprise party was given at the Hoga home in honor of Helena Hoga the occasion being her birthday. The evening was spent in cards and dancing. There were ten couples present. At the close of the evening a delicious two course lunch was served. She was presented with a beautiful silver mesh bag.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The weather for North Platte and vicinity averaged generally fair Sunday and Monday. The fore-cast for today is fair tonight and Wednesday; warmer tonight, continued warm Wednesday.

THIRTY-EIGHT BUSHELS
The very biggest yield of rye reported to this office this year was that of R. L. Lorenzen who had eleven acres that turned in just 419 bushels, an average of 38 bushels per acre. Mr. Lorenzen says that it took 3 1/2 pounds of twine for each acre and although he cut the rye about eighteen inches high, the bundles were four and five feet in length. It bothered Lussato Brothers threshing machine to keep shelling the straw and grain out of so much straw and the straw pile had the appearance of having been taken off of a forty acre field.—Garden City News
