SOMETHING NEW.

Page 49 of this week's Saturday Evening Post is of interest to all Automobileists, and especially to those who have been waiting to see who would build a full four door utility Sedan for touring, for pleasure or for a combination of either with all business uses. We all have seen "Chummy" roadsters with enclosed tops, also attempts in beaverboard, but someone was bound to build a complete enclosed car with a regular body to sell at a medium price. You can find out whether your guess was right by looking this up in your S. E. Post. "It is of Steel and Baked Enamel."—Advertisement.

What More Please?

The Platte Auto Trim

OF COURSE!!!

Family Ironing 6c An Hour

The current consumed in heating your electric iron costs only six cents an hour!

Surely the time you save on trips back and forth to the stove is worth these few cents. The strength you save sitting down to your work (no more jumping up to change irons) is worth this small sum. The over-heating and exhaustion you are spared when removed from contact with the hot stove are worth almost any amount of money.

You're only young once! Let electricity do as much of the work as it will—and that's considerable.
