Moved for U.S. Against Rail Unions

U.S. JUDGE JAMES H. WALKER

These men were the plaintiffs in the suit reaching court which granted the United States an injunction against the Rail Unions. They are (upper, left to right) U. S. District Atty. Gen. of Chicago, Asst. U. S. Atty. Gen. Blackburn Esterline and U. S. Atty. Gen. Harry M. Daugherty. Below, U. S. Judge James H. Walker, of the Chicago District, who granted the injunction. Attorney General Daugherty claims it a move only to prevent interfering with national public utilities. The Unions say they will fight to a finish.

The Brunswick Uprights
Plays all records without changing parts.

Famous Musical Critics Endorse The Brunswick

How significant it is that in the homes of great musicians you almost invariably find The Brunswick! Noticeable absence of mechanical accompaniment, in reproduction, is one reason. Its fidelity to true musical form is another.

STORE FUTURE FOOD SUPPLY

Woodpeckers Are Wise Birds and Never Take the Chance of Finding Larder Bare.

California woodpeckers often pass much of their idle time in the light occupation of filling holes in tree trunks with pebbles. When they are really industrious, however, they manufacture these symmetrical holes and fill them snugly with acorns. Often they allow these acorns to remain in cold storage for several months, and then, when they need extra rations, they know where a supply can readily be found. When oaks and pines grow side by side, the birds usually favor the pines as storage trees. This is probably because it is only on such trees that the outer bark presents a suitable surface for drilling the holes. No living oak trees are used, but dead oaks, from which the bark has fallen, are chosen.

The vast number of such holes that a single tree trunk can contain may be inferred from the fact that in 50 feet of a fallen pine tree in the San Jacinto mountains of California it was estimated that there were 31,800 holes. Almost without exception, the acorns are inserted into the holes. The birds take great pains to hammer them in securely. They like not only the acorns, but the grubs that are often contained in them. As for the pebbles, they must make a specialty of them when acorns are not in the market—just to keep themselves in training for handling (or should one say "billing") the new crop.—St. Nicholas.

The Wicked Judas.

During a visit he paid to Oberammergau several years ago the late Mr. Andrew D. White, the American diplomat, made the acquaintance of the Judas, whom he described as by far the best actor in the whole performance. Mr. White remarked to him that he ought to have a double salary, as the Judas had in the miracle plays of the Middle Ages, when this was thought due to him as compensation for the injury done to his character by his taking that part. At this the Oberammergau Judas smiled pleasantly, and replied: "No; I am content to share equally with the others. But the same feeling toward the Judas still exists." He then told Mr. White the following story. A few weeks before, while he was working at his carving bench, the door of his workshop opened and a peasant woman from the mountains came in, stood still, and gazed at him intently. On his asking her what she wanted she said: "I saw you in the play yesterday. I wished to look at you again. You look so like my husband. He is dead. He, too, was a very bad man!" —Manchester Guardian.

When Joking Is Dangerous.

Husbands should be careful how they spring jokes at the table. And wives should be alert on guard against the consequences of a surprise that amounts to a shock in certain cases—such as that at New York recently, for instance.

Men who toss off jokes at the table and cause their wives to laugh so suddenly that they pull a piece of meat into the trachea and choke to death have a grave responsibility. Of course, the habitual joker who gets a fresh stock every week runs no such risks. His wife is immune to laughter at his "funny cracks," and stands in no danger.

But fellows who are pleasant only once in a long time, and who "pull a joke" perhaps twice in a lifetime, should time their efforts so that their wives have not a mouthful of meat handy to pull into their windpipes. For that is not what windpipes are for, and they resent intrusion of solids.—Exchange.

Mrs. A. Pushman of Lemoyne is visiting this week at the home of Mrs. George McGinley of Keystone with friends in the city for a few days.

Candidate for County Commissioner,

E. H. SPRINGER,

Mr. Springer was defeated in the primary by a combination of some Republicans and the Democrats and Progressives, thereby defeating the intent of the Primary law. He enters the race again only on the solicitation of his friends over the county, who urge him to run and who have promised him their support.
