INFORMATION ABOUT AGRICULTURAL SUBJECTS FROM RELIABLE SOURCES

Farm boys and girls enrolled as club members by extension agents co-operatively employed by the United States Department of Agricultural colleges were represented by champion demonstration and judging teams from the 12 central states at the interstate boys' and girls' club exhibit and encampment at Sioux City, Iowa, September 18 to 23. Over 3,900 of these teams competed in 1921 for representation at Sioux City, Iowa, Sep- 19, 10,000 public demonstrations of club activities. The total enrollment in 12 states last year was more than 130,000 club members, whose production was valued at $2,640,000.

North Platte people will be interested in the following clipping taken from a recent issue of the Santa Ana (Cal.) Register. Mr. and Mrs. Huffman were formerly residents of North Platte and are well known by the older citizens.

Sale of the lease and furnishings of the Meyer apartments by Roy Harrington to G. C. Huffman, of this city, was announced today by Trickey Brothers, real estate brokers.

The consideration was reported at $20,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman, who will assume the management of the apartment house November 1, plan to make a number of improvements.

Both have had hotel experience and are familiar with the essentials necessary to the conduct of a high grade and successful enterprise of this character. They are the parents of Mrs. Arthur May, of the May Motor Company.

In addition to being an accomplished hotel hostess, Mrs. Huffman is an artist. Pictures she has painted since coming to Santa Ana have received the highest commendation of art critics.

Mr. and Mrs. Huffman came to Santa Ana from North Platte, Nebr., two years ago, since which time they have become so impressed with the future of Santa Ana that they have decided to invest and become permanent residents.

Their son, Dr. Harry G. Huffman, now a practicing physician in Omaha, is scheduled to arrive here Nov. 1, to reside. He was here on a visit two months ago, at which time he decided that Santa Ana would become his future home. In preparation for this he made application and was granted a state license to practice in California.

Yours for an Equal Deal

WHERE WEEDS ALWAYS WIN

Farming in Tropical Panama Consists of a Continuous Fight With the Invading Jungle.

A Florida orange-grower would turn gray if he had confronting him the problems which face any one who attempts to grow fruit in Panama.

The grass problem alone is enough to stagger the heart of the bravest planter. Think of your own vegetable garden in midsummer, when the days are steaming hot and the weeds are growing about as fast as you can pull them out; project these conditions indefinitely, for there is never any winter to check them, and you will get the endless vista of weeding which confronts the tropical planter.

Grass is certainly the curse of agriculture in the rainy tropics, and he who imagines tractor-work or the use of any of the ordinary tools of our northern agriculture in use on tropical farms should never lose sight of the grass.

There is really nothing so hopeless looking to a northern fruit-grower as a little orchard in a clearing in a tropical jungle. The great forest insists on taking back the little clearing to itself, and it is one continual fight with a machete to keep it from doing so.

When I was shown what looked from the deck of a launch like virgin forest, with great trees covered with creeping lianas, and was told that it had all grown up in eight years from cleared land, and when I recollected how fungus and insect pests haunt a clearing, I could better comprehend the feeling that, after all, for the individual of small means, there really is no other way to farm than to cut down and burn, plant and get a crop or two; then, when the plants and weeds of the returning forest drive you out, move on. It is the way of the native everywhere: clear a spot, rush in, rush out again, and let the land grow up to trees.—David Fairchild in the National Geographic Magazine.

SCOUTS TAKE CONTRACT TO DISTRIBUTE LARGE QUANTITY OF BILLS

During the past two weeks the Wilcox Department store has had a sale and bills were used for advertising. Mr. Wilcox went to Boy Scout headquarters and secured the services of ten boys. The city was divided into districts and the bills were put out in a faithful manner. This is a form of service which the scouts will render to anyone. Some of the merchants wanting bills distributed simply take them to the scout headquarters and leave it to the scout executive and the boys get them out, feeling sure that they will be well placed.

Candidate for County Commissioner,

E. H. SPRINGER,

Mr. Springer was defeated in the primary by a combination of some Republicans and the Democrats and Progressives, thereby defeating the intent of the Primary law. He enters the race again only on the solicitation of his friends over the county, who urge him to run and who have promised him their support.

Wheat Is Nature's Best Food

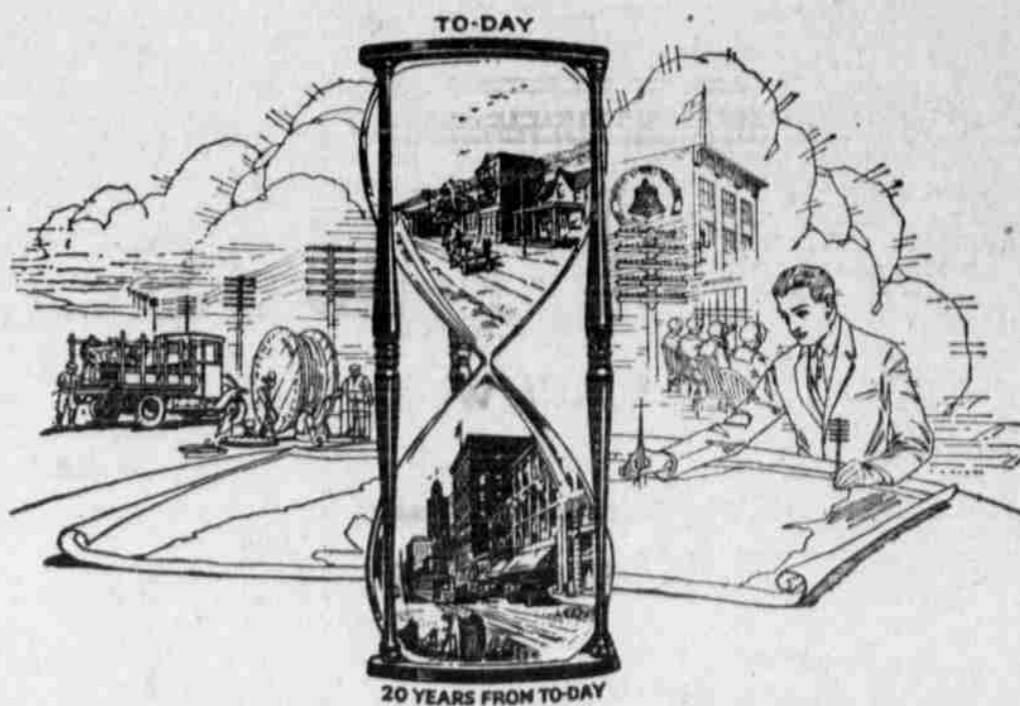

Nature has provided for man a great multitude of nourishing foods. The most perfect of these is wheat—the staff of life. Bread made from good wheat is perfect food. But the wheat must be properly ground or it will lose some of its qualities for health making.

SIoux LOOKOUT FLOUR

Your Future Needs

We try to have the wires in place, the switch-board equipped and other intricate mechanism ready so that when a new telephone is ordered, service can be provided with the least possible delay.

In order to do this economically, our engineers must estimate, for years in advance, the number of telephone users there will be, where they will live and how much telephone equipment they will need.

Planning ahead rather than waiting to manufacture and place equipment after service is needed, is a part of our policy to provide the most dependable service in the most economical way.
