EDITORIAL

John said—"Search the scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life."—John 5:39.

Woodrow Wilson said—"The one thing the world cannot permanently resist is the moral force of great and triumphant convictions."

WHO IS NORTH PLATTE?

A recent editorial in one of the Lexington papers complained of the way in which the report of the forfeit of the Lexington game was reported from North Platte to the World-Herald. The paper is not at hand and we do not remember the wording but the spirit of the editorial was censure of North Platte because of the article in question. This is a common error which we are all likely to make and most of us do make without thinking.

Who is North Platte? Is it the City Council? The Chamber of Commerce? The Woman's club? The Board of Education? The Central Labor Union? The Country club? The Local Scout Council? The Federated Churches, or some other equally important body? Who is North Platte anyway?

It is certain that the item in question was not submitted to any of these groups and does not reflect the sentiment of any of them. The local correspondent for the World-Herald is unknown to us but we will guarantee that he or she sent in the item as his or her own personal version of the affair.

Does this one person assume to speak for North Platte. We would not expect him or her to take such a stand.

The editor of this paper speaks for himself when he prints his opinions in the Tribune and nothing but a signed article by someone in position to speak or the assertion that the article is authorized by such person can be taken as the voice of North Platte.

Who is North Platte?

Certainly it is not the reporters for the state dailies nor the local newspapers. North Platte spoke Tuesday when it went to the polls and it is doubtful if there is another way of getting her opinion.

That is North Platte. M. A. Olberg, traveling passenger agent for the C. N. & S. P. railroad transacted business in the city Wednesday.

Peels Spuds and Asks for Senate Vote

From spuds to Senate is quite some hurdle, but the candidate Mrs. Annie D. Olson, of Minnesota, is not afraid to pose in kitchen frock in asking the voters of the state to send her to the U. S. Senate in place of Frank B. Kellogg, the present Republican Senator. Mrs. Olson does not let her campaign interfere with housework, as one wide awake photographer found when he called at the home. Political wiseacres say Mrs. Olson is piling up hundreds of votes in her campaign.

LET THERE BE WAR WITHOUT ARMISTICE!

November 11th we again commemorate the signing of the Armistice which closed the World War.

To make peace in the interest of humanity, to lay aside hatred and malice, is the part of great nations, of great people.

There are greater dangers, however, than war or invasion. One is a mode of living which inevitably turns life's freedom into a harassed existence.

Against extravagance, public and private, let there be war without armistice! Unchecked it can from within destroy a whole nation.
