People Who Look Over Houses. "My duty is to show intending tenants over the 'houses to let' which appear on our books," said a man employed by one of the great firms of land and house agents in London. "It might surprise you to know that some people have a perfect craze for looking over houses, though they are comfortably housed enough already and have no immediate intention of removing. I have shown the same couple—middle-aged folks with nothing to do, apparently—over scores of houses, from cottages to mansions. And as for 'faddy' people, well, I am afraid that the ladies are in general the hardest to please; but then, you see, the whole responsibility is mostly left to them. Some of them find that every house they look at has some serious drawback and they will keep me for hours at a time while they peer about. As a general principle the ladies want a bigger and finer house than they can afford. Often enough the gentleman who accompanies them never says a word, but lolls about and smokes listlessly."—Pearson's Weekly.
