THE RUSTLERS' WAR.

Outgrowth of Trouble Between Cattle-Men and Agriculturists.

In Wyoming irrigation struggled for some years with an obstacle more formidable than aridity. This was the organized stock interest which flourished on the public lands, wastefully using the public streams to produce crops of natural hay and to water great herds of cattle. While many of the leaders of this industry were of liberal and progressive mind, and freely conceded that they had neither a moral nor a legal right to stand in the way of progress, an aggressive and troublesome minority insisted that cattle were worth more than men to Wyoming.

The final conflict came in the "Rustlers' war" of 1892, with its ignominious and crushing defeat of the cattlemen and their hired outlaws from Texas. With that fiasco the barriers of opposition fell once and for all, and the irrigation sentiment has since dominated the state. Reclamation and settlement in Wyoming and similar localities elsewhere have never really menaced the stock industry, and have rather vindicated the necessity of its reorganization upon a more democratic basis. There will be more cattle in the aggregate, but distributed among a multitude of small owners living in the irrigated valleys. There they will raise the diversified products essential to their support, and great crops of winter fodder for cattle, while the adjacent uplands will serve for summer pasture. This process has begun, and it results in the elevation of the character of the men and of their industry alike.—William E. Smythe, in Century.

Hours for Sleep.

The truth of the old adage that one hour of sleep before midnight is worth two hours after midnight is questioned by Dr. E. P. Colby, who states that he made some study of the subject while in naval service during the rebellion. The ship's company on shipboard—officers and men alike—stand four-hour watches day and night, with the interpolation of a dog-watch of two hours to change the time of each set of men on successive days. These men are therefore obliged to get their required sleep very irregularly, but in more than two years' observation Dr. Colby could never discover that the watch officers and men were not as fully refreshed by their sleep as were the officers of the ship who were required to stand no watch at all.—Philadelphia Item.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

—It is said that stammerers rarely, if ever, show any impediment of speech when speaking in whispers.

—A dream that you have lost your sight indicates that you will soon discover the perfidy of a trusted friend.

—The sailboat for the pilot's use is going out of date, and the steamboat is taking its place. One is in successful operation in New York waters.

—The natives of Canada do not scruple to take out patents in Washington; 293 have been granted by our patent office to our cousins on the other side of the St. Lawrence.

—The otter is becoming more rare each year. Anthony Dokey caught one in a trap a few days ago in Black river, at Lee, Mich. It weighed 25 pounds, and the pelt is valued at $15.

—One of the greatest war records in Maine belongs to the safe of a company in Bars Mills, which has been blown open three times by burglars, and now has three holes in it, filled with powder, left by a recent marauding party.

—The average yearly sunshine in England, according to a recent work by Dr. Van Bebbier on meteorology and hygiene, is 1,400 hours; in Germany, 1,700; in Italy, 2,300; and in Spain, 3,600. London averages 23 hours of sunshine out of a possible 100, and Madrid 66.

—A tramp visited all the houses at Cloverport, Ky., and begged from every kind lady he met a postage stamp with which to send a letter to his sick mother. He got the stamp every time and went out of town with several dollars in his pockets as a result of the successful ruse.

—It is stated that an electric hen has recently been invented, which is claimed to be superior to the natural article of flesh, feathers and blood, except that it cannot lay eggs. When the electric incubator has produced the chickens, an electric foster mother takes them in charge. The upper part is devoted to the freshly hatched, while the lower part is so arranged that the young can run around on the ground, and at the same time find heat and protection when they require it.

A NEW penny-in-the-slot machine scares away tamperers by sounding an alarm and shocking them with a strong electric current.

"Perhaps you would not think so, but very large proportion of diseases in New York comes from carelessness about catching cold," says Dr. Cyrus Edson. "It is such a simple thing and so common that so very few people, unless it is a case of pneumonia, pay any attention to a cold. There are a great many cases of catarrh and consumption which have their origin in this neglect of the simplest precaution of every day life. The most sensible device is, when you have one, get rid of it as soon as possible. By all means do not neglect it." Dr. Edson does not tell you how to cure a cold but we will. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will relieve the lungs, aid expectoration, open the secretions and soon effect a permanent cure. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by M. H. Taylor.

THE SYRIAN ARABS.

Styles Set by the Patriarchs Still in Vogue in the East.

The Syrian Arabs have changed their style of dress less than any other nationality. At any rate there is no record of its having changed during the period covered by human history, either as regards male or female dress or adornment. Saving only for his firearms, there is no reason to believe that the Bedouin of the desert does not clothe and adorn himself exactly as he did in the days of the Patriarchs, and the women wear their ornaments in the nineteenth century of the same shape and in the same style as Sarah and Rebecca did. Among articles of western costume, the two oldest are probably the Highland kilt and the smock-frock of the west country English laborer. It is not probable that either of them has altered much for 1,600 years. The smock-frock was the peasant dress in early Saxon times, and the kilt would seem to be a development of the kirtle or fringed girdle, which was probably the earliest garment worn by man.

Racing Pigeons in Belgium.

Belgium is the home of the racing pigeon. There the sport is a national pastime, and a good pigeon frequently wins for its owner large sums of money, the prizes being considerable, to which heavy pools are added.

Our better halves say they could not keep house without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is used in more than half the homes in Leeds. Sims Bros., Leeds, Iowa. This shows the esteem in which that remedy is held where it has been sold for years and is well known. Mothers has learned that there is nothing so good for colds, croup and whooping cough, that it cures these ailments quickly and permanently, and that it is pleasant and safe for children to take. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by M. H. Taylor.
