HENRY WALKER, residing 25 miles west of Broken Bow, shot his wife three times a few days ago. The act was undoubtedly premeditated, as trouble had existed between them for some time. A smooth set of swindlers recently infested the country about Pleasant Dale and Emerald. They were horse traders and "struck every person they met for a swap." They told a long and pitiful story about being starved out by the drought in Colorado the last three years and said that they had lost all their property and most of their horses. After getting a number of good horses they left. They were voted to be a set of thieves, and several victims would be glad to meet them again.

Ir is stated that the cadets of the university of Nebraska are very much disgruntled, owing to a recent decision of the faculty against their going into camp this year. It is asserted that the attitude of the faculty originated in the fact that recently there was a somewhat riotons disposition manifested among some of the companies competing for the prizes offered for superior drilling, which disturbance led to the arrest of one of the cadets. The ground selected for the encampment is at Nebraska City, and the faculty is fearful of similar exploits among the young men if they are allowed to go into camp near that city.

Milk and Honey in Greece.

Among the best of the native Greek dishes, to a western taste, is a preparation of scalded goat's milk, not unlike Devonshire junket, and called Kaimaki. Milk in Greece, by the way, runs little risk of being watered, for the custom is to drive a flock of goats through the street and to milk them as required. Indeed, the milk-sellers in some places -Nauplia, for instance-are apt, for all their usefulness, to evoke anathemas when they perambulate the town before dawn, wakening the echoes and the sleepers with most strident and unmelodious howls of Gala! gala! If the children of Israel of old found the land of Canaan a land flowing with milk and honey, they must have fared, in at least one respect, like the modern traveler in Greece, who finds the fine honey of Hymettus distributed with lavish hand down the breakfast tables in large soup-plates, while the Athenian butter (of goat's milk, of course) is notso very unlike Devonshire cream, and the two go very well together. "Butter and honey shall he eat, and shall know how to choose the good and refuse the evil." One can buy honey-cake at a roadside station in Ellis, not far from Olympia-thick, stiff, viscid lumps about the color of oatmeal porridge, which tastes much better than it looks, and is, let us say, the lineal descendant of the honey-cake which the ancient Greek sacrificed to keep off the Furies. -Westminster Gazette.
