E. DELIA KEMPTHORNE, Teacher.

Fred Keichel, the republican nominee for county commissioner, has decided that he doesn't want the office, and so has resigned. The republican central committee met Wednesday and nominated Fred Grabe, of Benton precinct, to fill the vacancy, that power being delegated to the central committee by the county convention. We are not acquainted with Mr. Grabe but understand he is one of the best and most highly respected citizens of Benton precinct. He will make an active canvas. From all we can learn the central committee made a wise choice.

C. Shuck, proprietor of the Nemaha Valley Berkshire farm, won the following premiums on his hogs at the Auburn and Verdon fairs:

At Auburn he got first premium on boar, sweepstakes over everything on boar, and sweepstakes over everything on sow and pigs.

At Verdon Mr. Shuck got first premium on boar, sweepstakes over everything on sow and pigs, first premium on yearling sow, second premium on sow, first premium on boar, first premium on pig seven months old, second premium on pig five months old, and second premium on boar pig.

As Mr. Shuck had but few hogs on exhibition the showing is a remarkably good one.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

The following resolutions were adopted at the regular meeting of Olive camp No. 14, Woodmen of the World, Nemaha, Neb., Tuesday night, October 13th, 1896:

Whereas, God in His divine wisdom has removed by death our beloved Sovereign, J. Everett Larimore, to the eternal camp from whence no mortal ever returneth; therefore be it

Resolved, by the sovereigns of Olive camp No. 14, Woodmen of the World, that we deeply feel our loss, and extend our sympathies to the widow and friends, and that we will try by our kind acts to the living to alleviate as much as within us lie, the sorrowful mourning that cometh to those who are bereaved by this sad event.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished THE ADVERTISER for publication.

REFINED REVENGE.

Here is a Girl Who is Complete Master of the Art.

From one of our fashionable suburbs, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, comes a tale of revenge that would make a Sioux Indian turn green with envy. A young man just home from an eastern college invited a young lady of the village to a Sunday morning ride on his tandem bicycle. She was delighted, and would, of course, go, and she could scarcely wait to carry the news to her particular girl friend, who, it happened, had heretofore occupied the front seat on that same tandem. Then the plot was laid.

"How nice," said her chum. "Have you a bicycle suit? Why not wear mine? Don't you think this will look lovely?"

Now, the garment exhibited happened to be a bathing suit of pronounced colors and unique design, but the first young lady had never been in sight of salt water, and being of a guileless nature, anyhow, the bunko game worked to perfection.

The young man's breath suddenly left him that Sunday morning when his companion came out ready to mount, but that was nothing to the picnic they created along the route. Pious matrons on their way to church threw up both hands and prayed fervently, and the male population on the streets stopped spellbound and watched them out of sight. The young man had little to say, but it is claimed he broke Zimmerman's record getting to the unfrequented streets. Verily, "revenge is sweet."

A SUNSTRUCK TREE.

The Singular Cause of the Death of a Sugar Maple.

In the last number of Meehan's Monthly the editor tells of being summoned to hold an inquest over a dead sugar-maple tree. It was supposed to have been destroyed by a leak in the city gas main near its roots, but an examination convinced Mr. Meehan that the tree had died literally from sunstroke.

This maple had been planted on the street about 25 years, and was some four feet in girth. The trunk, however, instead of being cylindrical, was shaped like a triangular prism—a peculiarity owing to the fact that on three sides of it the inner bark and wood had been killed, while the outer bark continued to cover up the injury so that the only living wood was at the angles of the trunk. Practically no more than one-third of the surface of the trunk was alive, and when the exceedingly warm weather of last month came the limited number of ducts were not sufficient to supply the moisture needed to meet the rapid transpiration from so large a surface of foliage; consequently the leaves wilted and the tree died.

Whenever the trunk of a tree takes on this angular form it should be examined under the bark, and if the flatter portions are found dead the bark and the decaying part of the wood should be wholly cut away and the denuded part painted to check the rotting. In time healthy wood may grow over such a scar, and the life of the tree may thus be eventually saved.

POKER AN INDEX OF INSANITY.

Forgetting to Ante Urged as Ground for Breaking a Will.

During the contest over the will of John B. Haskin, who was known in politics as "Tuscarora" Haskin, one of the witnesses gave testimony to show that failure to properly play the game of poker is an evidence of insanity, says a New York dispatch in the Providence Journal. Mr. Haskin left an estate valued at over $1,000,000, most of which he bequeathed to his son. His daughter and grandchild contested the will. Benjamin F. Cohn said Mr. Haskin was very fond of poker and was a very careful player until the spring of 1892, when he became careless, often holding his cards so that the other players could see them.

"Did he ever forget to ante?"
"Oh, frequently; and others did it for him."

"Well, that is hardly proof of insanity," said counsel for the son. "To forget to ante is not unusual in a game between American gentlemen. Did Mr. Haskin forget to play his hand when the other players had their ante up?"

"No."
"Did he forget to take his winnings?"
"Oh, no."

Mr. Cohn also thought that the old man's habit of letting his false teeth fall out of his mouth without noticing it was another evidence of feeble-mindedness.

A Boy's Letter.

The Fortnightly vouches for the genuineness of the following extract from "A Boy's Letter to His Mother:"

"I am glad I have a new sister, but wish she had been a boy. Sister, to me if the Lord couldn't have sent a boy He might at least sent a pony. * * * Can't I have griddle cakes the days I don't have salad? You always used to let me. * * * There is lots of game here. There are mice in the house and rats in the barn, and chipmunks in the woods. I am going to bring home one. * * * Is a boy a pig if he is helped three times? I mean if they are small helpings and they insist?"

Hundreds of other Bargains equally as attractive in the various Departments of Our Store.

When you say to one of our "Would-be Competitors" that McIninch sells 21 pounds of Granulated Sugar for $1.00 he says it's "A LEADER." When you tell him that McIninch sells good muslins and prints for 33 3/4 cents per yard, he says it's "A LEADER." When you tell him that McIninch sells 5 gallons of best coal oil for 50 cents, he says it's "A LEADER." And so he goes on in this "Poll Parrot" way, until at one time or other he has characterized nearly every article in our store as a leader.

THAT'S RIGHT.

THEY ARE LEADERS. Every article in our store is a leader. That's where you want to buy goods, where you can't buy anything but leaders.

A PLEASURE-LOVING PEOPLE.

And Yet the Hungarian Peasants Make Good Soldiers.

Writing of "Hungary's Picturesque Peasantry" in the Ladies' Home Companion, Dr. Edward A. Steiner says: "They are all a pleasure-loving people, and the roving gypsy, if he can wield a bow, finds a welcome in every hut. The csarda (inn) is filled every night with villagers and shepherds from the pusztas (plains). The wives, babies and sweethearts come, too, and over a glass of palenka (whisky) or soor (wine) the evening is spent, never ending without a dance or a fight; and good fighters they are, these Hungarians. They fought for their liberty, and retained it, as did no other of the Austrian provinces; and if Austria lost her battles with foreign foes, it was due to no lack of bravery on the part of Hungarian soldiers. Though hating the German tongue, which is used in the army, when the call 'vorwaerts' came, they unquestioningly obeyed, and shed their blood upon the battle fields of sunny Italy and in the forests of Bohemia.

"The Austrian empire, once the holy Roman empire, has lost her place in the front rank of nations because of her decaying aristocracy, which yielded only cowards and weaklings for the captains of her host, and because of her narrowing conservatism which kept alive the spirit of persecution, and which hindered any real progress. But Hungary, though under Austrian rule, has steadily been gaining, and her progress, as I have said, is due largely to her brave, industrious and liberal-minded peasantry."

FIGHT BETWEEN ELKS.

How the Patriarch of the Drove Demonstrated His Prowess.

A writer in the last issue of the American Field had a very interesting paper on "Hunting Big Game in the Rockies," in which he depicts a combat between the chief of a band of elks and a number of valorous but indiscreet young bulls of the same family.

After leaving camp and hunting the mountains for a distance of four or five miles he came in sight of a fresh sign, followed it up, and soon found a band of perhaps a hundred elks, cows, calves and bulls, going to the windward. They soon crept up within 50 to 75 yards of them. There was one old bull among them who seemed to be chief of the harem. He came out into an open park and challenged the other bulls to combat. Pop and Van were lying flat in the timber taking in the circus. The old patriarch would whistle, and soon a young bull would answer him and trot out ready to take up the challenge, and fight for some favorite. They would spar around for some little time, for points, then back off and rush together like two battering rams, bellow and tear up the earth. One such round would usually end the fight, and the youngster would take to the timber, fully satisfied. Another challenge from the old patriarch and another young bull would appear on the ground to take up the gauntlet, only to get an awful drubbing and be sent back to the timber cowed. This challenge was given and accepted by four different bulls, and all were beaten back to their corners and over the line. After two hours of hard fighting he called time on the old bull and shot him.

Newspapers in the Campaign.

In the present campaign, newspapers will be the greatest of educators, in teaching the voters of the land the proper way to view the political questions of the day. The Republic, of St. Louis, is without doubt the most able instructor published on the Democratic side, as it explains in almost every issue, by editorial or learned article why the mass of the people should vote for the Democratic Presidential candidate. In addition, it prints all the news of the doings of both parties and all the speeches of statesmen. The Republic is only $6 a year, $1 50 for 3 months or 65 cents a month by mail. Semis-Weekly Republic $1.00 a year.
