THE FIGHT IN NEBRASKA.

State Journal, Nov. 11th.
 Returns are sufficiently complete to show that the vote for McKinley in Nebraska was just about an even 100,000, against about 112,500 for Bryan. The vote for other candidates will be so small as to be merely "scattering."

In 1892 the vote for Harrison was 87,227 out of a total of 200,274. The combined vote against Harrison was, therefore, just about what it was last Tuesday against McKinley. It was 112,947. The majority against Harrison was 25,720. The majority against McKinley including the scattering will probably be less than 15,000. So the republicans have gained considerable ground since 1892, notwithstanding Harrison got the electoral vote then on account of the division of the opposition.

From 1866 to 1881 the republican never failed to get a majority over all in a state election in Nebraska. In 1882 the greenback and labor union elements, combined with the democrats, elected the state treasurer, and the republican governor, Dawes, was elected by a minority vote of 43,495 out of a total vote of 89,068.

After that the republican majorities ran along again without interruption until the landslide of 1890, when the pop party sprang into the arena, bigger at its birth than ever after. The republican state ticket pulled through by a minority vote all but the candidate for governor, who was beaten, having received only 68,878 out of a total vote of 214,072, the largest vote ever polled until this year. The majority against the head of the republican ticket was 76,319.

In 1892 the majority against Crouse, combined, was 30,673. In 1893 Judge Harrison's vote was 72,032 out of a total of 181,606. Combined majority against Judge Harrison, 37,542. In 1894 Majors for governor was defeated, receiving 94,613 out of a total vote of 203,852. This was a great republican gain, as the total adverse majority against Majors was only 14,426.

Considering everything, especially the fact that the disastrous crop failures during the first two years of Mr. Cleveland's administration had prevented Nebraskans from profiting much by the objection of the Wilson act, which other states having no local disasters enjoyed, and the strong hold the delusive doctrines of populism had upon the minds of Nebraska farmers, it is not wonderful that the republicans were not able to make up all the ground lost in 1890, in 1896. Still they have made a gain on 1894 and a very decided gain on 1895 when Norval was elected judge by a vote of 79,156 out of a total of 182,918, a majority against him if combined of 24,806. The late campaign was no child's play in this state under the circumstances. Next time the republicans will, if the state has another good crop in 1897 and no set back in 1898, sweep the board and resume their knitting.

My little boy, when two years of age was taken ill with bloody flux. I was advised to use Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and luckily procured part of a bottle. I carefully read the directions and gave it accordingly. He was very low but slowly and surely he began to improve, gradually recovered, and is now as stout and strong as ever. I feel sure it saved his life. I never can praise the Remedy half its worth. I am sorry every one in the world does not know how it is, as I do.—Mrs. Lina S. Hinton, Grahamsville, Marion Co, Florida. For sale by Taylor, the druggist.
