He will not take command of the forces in the field, nor will he supersede Gen. Otis. He will, however, act in the capacity of general of the army and will have a supervision over field operations.

A WASHINGTON dispatch said the real reason for Thomas B. Reed's retirement from congress was because he did not agree with the president's policy of territorial expansion.

A WASHINGTON dispatch stated that the commissioner of Indian affairs has decided to bar women from appointments as superintendents of Indian schools, owing to the industrial feature in the schools and it being demonstrated that women were unfitted for work of that character.

COMMUNE RECALLED.

Paris the Scene of Bloody Riots Between Socialists and Anarchists.

Combatants Used Knives and Hatchets and Many Hundred Were Wounded—Church Pillaged and the Furniture Used for a Bonfire.

Paris, Aug. 21.—Paris was yesterday the scene of most serious disturbances, recalling some aspects of the commune. In response to an appeal of the journals Le Peuple and La Petite Republique, groups of anarchists and socialists gathered about three o'clock in the afternoon in the Place de la Republique. The police had taken precautions and there seemed no danger of disorder. Sebastian Faure and M. Faberot, well-known revolutionary anarchists, were the ringleaders. Faure, standing on the pedestal of the statue which rises in the center of the Place de la Republique, addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets. The police then interfered and dislodged Faure and Faberot, making three arrests.

The crowd at this point dispersed, but a column of demonstrators headed by Faure and Henri d'Horr made for the Place de la Nation. The police broke through the column, and a struggle for the mastery followed. Shots were fired, and M. Gollier, commissary of police, was twice stabbed with a knife. This threw the police into momentary confusion. The mob reassembled and ran toward the Place de la Nation. The police, re-enforced by a squad that had been held in reserve, made another attempt to stem the current and fresh, fierce fighting occurred, three constables being wounded.

In the meantime the anarchist mob retraced its course to the Place de la Republique, smashing the windows of religious edifices on the way. Suddenly, either at the word of command or in obedience to impulse, the column made a loup and curved toward the Church of St. Ambroise, where the rioters smashed the windows. Proceeding thence toward the Faubourg du Temple, at the corner of the Rue Darboy and the Rue Mauri-Popincourt, they formed up into a compact body. Hatchets were suddenly produced, with knives stolen from the counters of shops, and a concerted rush was made upon the church of St. Joseph. The aged sacristan, seeing the mob, hastily closed the outer gates, but these were soon forced with hatchets and bars of iron. The massive oaken doors were then attacked.

The wild horde burst into the church, which instantly became a scene of pillage and sacrilege. Altars and statues were hurled to the floor and smashed, pictures were rent, candlesticks and ornaments from high altars were thrown down and trampled under foot. The crucifix above was made the target for missiles and the figure of the Savior was fractured in several places. Then, while rancorous voices sang the "Carmagnole" the chairs were carried outside, piled up and set on fire in the center of the square fronting the church. When this stage was reached the crucifix was pulled down and thrown into the flames. Suddenly the cry was raised that the statue of the Virgin had been forgotten and the crowd returned and tore this down also. Meanwhile the sacristan, who had been captured by the anarchists, escaped and called the police and republican guards, who promptly arrived with many constables. They were compelled to fall back in order to form into a line of defense, as the anarchists attacked them fearfully with knives. At length the officers began to gain the mastery. Twenty anarchists were arrested, taken to the police station, searched and found to be carrying revolvers, loaded sticks and knives.

According to some accounts, paving stones were torn up and used as missiles. In the Avenue de Taillebourg there was a fierce conflict. The police had to draw their swords against the anarchists, who assailed them with stones. Four policemen were wounded, two so seriously that they had to be taken to the hospital.

A lamentable feature of the affair is that it will be regarded as a pro-Dreyfus demonstration and react greatly to the detriment of the chances of acquittal. It is much to be feared that yesterday's scenes were due to the weakness the government has displayed over the Guerin affair. The government's desire to avoid bloodshed has been misinterpreted with the worst results.

It appears that the anarchist demonstration was decided upon at a meeting held Saturday night. The Journal du Peuple, edited by Sebastian Faure, published a manifesto denouncing the military party, the anti-Semites, the monarchists and the priests, and urged its supporters to meet force with force. "Should Dreyfus be convicted," said the manifesto, "it will be a triumph of bandits. Should he be acquitted, the military section will be open to rebellion."

The prefecture of police gives the following statistics of the riots in Paris on the 20th: Three hundred and eighty persons injured; 500 taken to the hospitals; 59 police agents wounded; 150 persons arrested, of whom 80 were detained in custody.

SUNKHAZER FLIES OF MAINE.

Worse Than Jersey Mosquitoes and Kissing Bugs Have No Chance with Them.

Since reading in the newspapers of the kissing bug and his doings all the people in rural Maine have taken to capturing bugs and insects of all sorts and bringing the specimens to town for examination by newspaper men and naturalists. Countless are the kinds of bugs that have been taken to Bangor in bottles, boxes and preserve jars, and the captors all seem to be sorely disappointed when told that instead of the genuine kisser they have a moth killer, a lace-winged fly, or something quite common and harmless.

A man came from Veazie to Bangor the other day with a ferocious-looking bug corked up in a preserve jar and claimed the credit of having captured the first kissing bug in that part of the country. It was not the famous kissing bug that he had, but a native bug somewhat resembling a small lobster with wings.

"I don't care a hang," declared the Veazie man, when told that he must try again. "These fellows kin lick the stuffin' out of Sunkhazers, and that's what none of your common bugs kin do."

Not many people living far away from Bangor know what a "Sunkhazer" is like. It is a ferocious big fly that infests the flats and meadows about Sunkhazer deadwater, a place in the Penobscot river where the water is slack and where millions of logs are rafted. The Sunkhazers are the pest of the loggers, upon whom they feast to their heart's content, and nothing can drive them away. They are four times the size of the famed mosquitoes of Jersey, and any Maine man will back one of them against a dozen kissing bugs in a fair stand-up fight. Maine folks have, probably, no kissing bugs, but so long as the Sunkhazers survive they will not feel lonesome.—N. Y. Sun.
