Last Saturday was a great disappointment to those who had intended to attend the old settlers picnic. It began raining shortly after nine o'clock and did not let up except at brief intervals until after noon, and part of that time it rained very hard. Congressman Burkett drove over from Auburn and a good delegation came with him. After it was decided to postpone the meeting efforts were to get Mr. Burkett to be the orator, but owing to previous engagements he could not come. Then efforts were made over the telephone to get Judge Allen W. Field, of Lincoln, and Judge Kestinger, of Beatrice, but neither could come. Another appeal was then made to Hon. J. Sterling Morton, who was one of the first speakers written to for Saturday's picnic, and he finally consented to come.

His Life Was Saved.
