

PROVING BENEFACTOR

DR. W. I. SEYMOUR DOING MUCH GOOD.

Citizens Patients and Patrons—An Esteemed Resident of Lincoln Gives the Utmost Assurance of Personal Relief for His Eyes.

Lincoln State Journal.

The fear of loss or permanent impairment of the eyesight is a great source of uneasiness and unhappiness and the man who can apply preventive and success remedy, resulting in permanent improvement of affected eyes, is a benefactor. Dr. W. I. Seymour has been in the city at 1219 K street or some time and has listed hundreds of our citizens as patients and patrons and without doubt is doing a great deal of good in his treatment of the eyes. Some of our most reliable residents and old timers are numbered among his patients, feeling confident that his past success has proved a permanent blessing to them.

Our representative, while waiting in the doctor's reception room, became engaged in conversation with one of Lincoln's prominent ladies, and learned that while she had been treating with Drs. Seymour and Cox but a short time the relief already obtained was worth ten times the money expended. Mrs. E., as well as all those in the room, were universal in their praise of the doctor's work, conduct and treatment. One gentleman remarked that he had had several noted oculists examine and treat his eyes, and all of them told him he must have an operation performed for cataract formations, necessitating the opening or cutting of the eyeball, before he would get relief, but said both Drs. Seymour and Cox told him an operation of so severe a nature was entirely unnecessary; that the growth could easily be removed by absorption, a treatment most successfully practiced by them. He was very enthusiastic over the prospect of having his eyes cleared of that dread formation and that Dr. Seymour could fit him with glasses that could be used both for long and for short distance—no short, he permanently cured. The gentleman in question also said that the doctors were working hard and heroically and had inspired him with the strongest hope that his sight would be wholly repaired. Coming from an old and respected family of physicians, the information concerning his treatment can be considered absolutely reliable and not in the least exaggerated or overblown.

The hopeful expressions uttered by other patients in speaking of assurances vouchsafed by Drs. Seymour and Cox inspired one with the thought that the knowledge of remedies and devices to restore impaired eyesight is a blessing conferred by God alone. It is to be hoped that all of the doctors' patients will be justified in singing lasting praises to their skill and treatment as the one above mentioned has been able to do.

THE EYES OF JESSE JAMES.

Peepers of the Man Who for so Many Years Was a Noted Bandit.

Lincoln Evening News.

During an interview with Dr. Seymour, recently, the conversation turned to the subject of detecting criminals by their eyes; and when the reporter asked if this was possible, the doctor replied:

"Not in all cases, but in many instances it is true, as can be learned from any trained detective. Of course the ordinary person, who has made no study of the expression of the eye can easily be misled, as even the eyes of outlaws are often beautiful, which a little story told me by a Chicago man will serve to substantiate.

"Many years ago," related my friend, "I foolishly became interested in Colorado silver mines. With a prominent Cleveland I took a trip to the mines. At Durango, then the terminus of the main line of railroad, we had to remain over night, before getting the construction train up the mountain the following day. My companion got it into his head that he wanted an apple. We approached a man with long hair and wearing a sombrero, who had a small fruit stand in the village of tents. My friend took three apples and threw down a nickel. The cowboy venter, for he certainly looked like one, said: 'Twenty-five cents for those apples, please.'"

"This is robbery," said my companion, "it is outrageous."

"Look here," the stranger said, as he drew two huge revolvers, "I'm not in this Godforsaken country for nothing; shell out and shell out quick." We shelled out and shelled out quick.

"The next day we climbed upon a flat car of the construction train and started up the mountain. Presently a man wearing a sombrero and possessing two of the coldest, most penetrating eyes I ever saw, boarded the car. Two revolvers protruded from his hip pockets. He sized us up and said, 'Five dollars each, gentlemen, please.'"

"What on this road?" asked my friend.

"Fare on that road; do you think that we're running trains for our health?"

"We produced our tickets, but the stranger said that they were no good, and demanded the money.

"See here," my friend, I said, "I don't care about the money, but I want to say that you have a pair of the most beautiful eyes I ever saw in a man's head."

"You're quite a blarney, lad," he replied with a smile, which lit up his cold features, "but it goes with me because I feel a little proud of those peepers myself."

"He climbed off the car and disappeared without further molesting us. We saw in his receding form the most notorious outlaw in the country's history, for, as we afterwards learned, the man who tried to collect our fares was none other than Jesse James."

Dr. Kay's Renovator.

It cured George W. Hervay, Editor of Omaha's great weekly World-Herald of a terrible Stomach Trouble of many years standing after the three best physicians in the state had failed.

He writes: "For years I was troubled with indigestion so severe as to make it impossible to take more than two meals a day without intense suffering. I grew worse with increased pain and soreness over the pit of my stomach and sharp pains in my right side which rapidly increased, until I could scarcely get my breath. A physician was called and hypodermic injections of morphia resorted to. I lost twenty-two pounds in nine days and I was left wholly unable to take any nourishment. I was waiting for my end when I was recommended to try Dr. Kay's Renovator and I now have no symptoms whatever of my old trouble. I recommended it to many of my friends for stomach trouble and all have reported relief."

Dr. Kay's Renovator, sold by druggists for 25c and $1.00 or six for $5.00. Take no substitute they claim it is "just as good." It has no equal. We will send any of our remedies by mail on receipt of price, if they don't have it.
