Mark Hanna, chairman of the republican national central committee, made his visit to Auburn last Saturday. It was almost two o'clock p. m. when the special arrived at the M. P. depot. A platform had been built in front of the amphitheater on the fair grounds. An immense crowd was waiting to see and hear the great Mark Hanna. Victor B. Dolliver, brother of Senator Dolliver of Iowa, made a short talk. In the midst of his speech the crowded platform collapsed. Fortunately no one was seriously injured. As soon as the confusion subsided Senator Hanna stood on a chair and began his speech by saying the people had just been given an object lesson. That was the way the democratic party would be crushed on the 6th day of November. Senator Hanna's remarks were well received. He was followed in a masterly address by Judge Ben S. Baker of Omaha.

The chair in which Senator Hanna was sitting when the platform went down was crushed. The pieces were saved as relics of the occasion, populists and democrats as well as republicans being anxious for a piece of the chair.

Few men in any community are held in so high esteem as is G. N. Titus. Do not fail to make a cross after the name of every candidate for every state, congressional, legislative, county or precinct office that you want to cast a vote for. You can vote for all the candidate for presidential electors by making a cross in the circle to the right of the names, but for every other candidate you want to vote for you have to make a cross in the square opposite his name. Do not fail to do this.
