Shortage of $10,000.

State Auditor Weston has made public a report of the condition of the Kearney county treasurer's office, showing a shortage of $10,011.07 in the accounts of Treasurer Alfred B. Norlin, who says he was held up and robbed of this amount last week. The auditor and the examiners refused to comment on the robbery, further than to say that the shortage was in the cash account and that there was no way of determining whether or not all of the money was taken at one time. Norlin's story is that while sitting in his office about 8:15 p. m. he was clubbed into insensibility and that when he regained consciousness he found that the cash box had been robbed and a fire started, which was rapidly spreading about the interior of the room. As to the fire, his story is confirmed by firemen and others who hastened to the scene at the first alarm. Mr. Norlin is said to be in a serious condition physically and his physicians express fear that his brain has been permanently affected.

Western Nebraska Timber.

A field party of the United States bureau of forestry was organized at Kearney to investigate forest conditions and possibilities in western Nebraska. The party will proceed up the Platte river, examining the timber on all streams within reach. Upon arriving at the west line of the state a northward course will be taken through Scotts Bluff and Sioux counties. Later in the season study will be made of the sandhills to determine their adaptability to timber. The success of a pine plantation established by the government 11 years ago in the sandhills of Holt county has led to the belief that pines are adapted to large areas in the sandhills.

Dancer Falls to His Death.

The celebration at Dawson was clouded by a tragedy in the evening. Mike Clancy, a young man of that place, after participating in a couple of dances attempted to jump and sit on a high window sill to cool off. He lost his balance and plunged out of the window and down to the sidewalk. He was dead when picked up. He belonged to one of the pioneer families of the county. A sister who was at the dance fainted and for a time her recovery was in doubt.

There are 1,465 registered pharmacists in the state, 50 licenses having been granted during the year 1900.

Suicide to Avoid Shame.

Rev. L. G. Brooker, an evangelistic clergyman known as the cowboy preacher, killed himself at his home in Kearney on being arrested on complaint of Miss Harriet Longmate, whose charge against him involved acknowledgment of the paternity of her child. Miss Longmate is an orphan, aged 30 years. Her friends in Grand Island, where she lives, claim that she is not strong-minded and that Brooker had a magnetic influence over her. She owns the property she occupies and Brooker and his family made their home with her during their stay in Grand Island. Brooker's family left for Kearney last spring and he remained there two weeks, claiming to be looking after his spiritual work while his people prepared a home in his new field. Miss Longmate says that during those two weeks Brooker was her constant companion and that he took advantage of her mental weakness and wronged her.

To Irrigate Two Counties.

A plan for irrigating on a colossal scale a long strip of land north of the Platte river in Scotts Bluff and Cheyenne counties has been brought to the attention of State Engineer Dobson and a committee of citizens residing in Scotts Bluff county is searching anxiously for capital with which to back the scheme. The territory through which it is proposed to run the principal canal has been organized into an irrigation district and $400,000 of bonds have been voted for the purpose of raising funds to complete the work already begun.

Seeks Relief in Court.

The finance committee of the grand lodge A. O. U. W., at its meeting in Grand Island, decided to have an architect look over the building offered by Grand Island for the permanent home of the order and then go into a friendly suit in the district court to ascertain if the committee is authorized to purchase the building.

Not Enough to Nominate.

As the laws of Nebraska require the attendance of 200 delegates and the representation of two-thirds of the counties to give a nominating convention a legal standing the attempt of the socialists to put a state ticket in the field at Omaha was a failure. Only 50 delegates were present from a few cities. However, a platform was adopted by the convention.

ADVENTURES OF A QUEER BOY

His Strange Visit to Buckingham Palace Early in Queen Victoria's Reign.

Amid the flood of anecdotes connected with the late queen and royal family that has been pouring through the columns of the press, I do not think anyone has called attention to the adventure of the "boy Jones," at Buckingham palace, a few years after the queen's marriage, says Edward Vizetelly, in London Free Lance. This young fellow was twice caught within the royal residence, without anyone being able to explain how he got there. On the first occasion he was surprised by a porter early in the morning leisurely surveying one of the apartments. On being searched, nothing of importance was found upon him, but he had made up a bundle containing a sword, a pot of bear's grease, and some old letters.

He was covered with soot, from head to foot, and looked like a sweep, but denied that such was his calling, pointing out that his sooty appearance was due to his having concealed himself in chimneys in the daytime. For awhile he had occupied the vacant bedroom of one of the equerries, and had left the sooty imprints of his frame on the sheets. He stoutly declared that his intrusion was not for the purpose of theft, but to find out how royalty and the "great swells" like royal footmen lived. His examination before the magistrate created great amusement. He admitted that he had been in the palace on previous occasions, and for days together. In fact, he had "put up there," he said. He had found it a very comfortable place. The apartment he liked best was the drawing-room. During the day he hid behind the furniture, when he was not up a chimney, but late at night, when everyone had gone to bed, he walked about, went into the kitchen, and got his food. Then he related that he had seen the queen and her ministers in council, and had listened to all they had to say. When asked if he had worn the same shirt all the time he calmly replied: "Yes, when it was dirty I washed it in the kitchen." And then he volunteered the information that he knew his way all over the palace, and had been right through it—in the queen's apartments and all. He had found out that her majesty was very fond of politics, he said.

This lad revealed himself such a pleasant vagabond, with his amusing ways and astounding impudence, that no very serious punishment was inflicted on him. He was merely put away for a short term. Nor did he fare very badly when caught a second time. On this occasion he was caught crouching in a recess, and, being dragged out of it, was taken to the police station. He then told the magistrate that he had concealed himself under a safe in one of the queen's private apartments, and had overheard a long conversation between her majesty and Prince Albert. He was sent to the house of correction for a few months, in the hope of breaking him of the mania for intruding on the sovereign's privacy, as the offense was mildly termed. But soon after his release he was found prowling in the vicinity of the palace. Finally the authorities induced him to emigrate to Australia, where he evidently blossomed into a well-to-do colonist. It was soon after these events that Baron Stockmar was brought over here to introduce order and discipline into the royal residence.

A Medical Testimonial.

Sirs: We fed our baby on modified cow's milk the first six months, but the milkman did not understand how to modify his cows properly, and in consequence the child lost flesh till he weighed but one pound.

I now procure some of your celebrated Infant's Food. This the baby managed to trade off to the dog for some dog biscuit, which he ate and is now well and hearty.

The dog died, but dogs are cheap.

We are grateful to you, indeed. You may use my name if you like, John Jones.—Detroit Journal.

Will be the greatest this country has ever seen. The entire machinery will be run by power furnished from Niagara Falls. Although the power required is enormous we believe this catarrh is equal to the task, the same as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is equal to the task of supplying the body with motive power when it is run down. There is no medicine in the world so good for dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, flatulency and nervousness. Try it.
