Seymour Howe's condition became much worse last Saturday night and on Sunday he was in a critical condition and suffered extreme pain. Monday he was a little easier, but Tuesday and Wednesday was worse again. He rested fairly well Wednesday night and Thursday morning was apparently a little better, but it is feared the seeming improvement will last only a very short time. His condition is very serious and the end may come at any time.

Charley Thompson, son of A. L. P. Thompson, had his hand caught in a corn sheller and severely lacerated a few days ago. He has an interest in a corn sheller and was helping shell corn for Floyd Anderson. In some way his hand got caught and before the sheller was stopped his hand was drawn into the sheller. The flesh was almost stripped from the first finger and second and third ones were also lacerated. Between the first and second finger a hole had been but in the flesh that required several stitches to close it. He came to town and Dr. Gaither dressed the wounds. It is thought the hand will not be crippled, but it cannot be used for some time.
