It is idle to go to college without a lively appreciation of the main bushness for which one goes. That is to do college work. A college degree worth the having can be won by nothing but serious, resolute, systematic study. Habits must be regular. Health and rational living and strong purpose are vital factors. Recreation is necessary to sound health, and companionship is essential to sane living. So a rational division of time is important. A man cannot rest too much and do his work, nor can he work overmuch without endangering his powers of work. He cannot by any course of irrational pleasure rob his body and mind of their native strength and natural zest without failing in the main thing for which he goes to college. Then there is the problem of student friendships and ory ganizations. In many cases tendencies have gone so far before leaving home that they settle this matter at once. If not, it settles itself very quickly when the time comes. It is interesting, sometimes amusing, to see how quickly a new student settles down with a fraternity, or with the Christian Association, or with a literary society, or with a scientific club, or with the "barbarlans." Close association with congenial spirits is natural, and it is well. A boy should make close friendships with those whose friendships mean the most to him. There is something more than friendship in the student organizations. There is good experience in helping to manage an organization, in the necessity of giving way to others at times. in the habit of standing up for something, and in the necessity of so steering the affairs of an organization that one can stand up for it. A student denies himself much if he does not go in with some college organization. Sancho Panza said: "God bless the man who first invented sleep." To this may be added a blessing for the London physician who is putting in a protest against early rising. The name of the physician is not given, but whoever he is he deserves a benediction. "May he live long and prosper." This wise doctor says: "To be forced to get up early grinds the soul, curdles the blood, swells the spleen, destroys all good intentions and disturbs all day the mental activities. Criminals are always recruited from the early-rising class." How different this from the old New England adage about early to bed and early to rise and the advantages of the early bird and all that! Wake up at 5 o'clock in the morning and see who it is that is stirring. Is it the wealthy? Is it the healthy or the wise? Stuffed Green Peppers.

Cut the stem-ends from peppers and emove the white membrane and sceds. Put into a dish and pour boiling water over them, then let them stand until old in the water. This takes away ull hot taste. Drain and fill with a forcement of chopped mution, beef or real, to which a little minced ham has peen added, and stir in enough boiled ice to make a paste of the mixture. Moisten with seasoned gravy or souptock. Replace the ends on the peppers, stand up in a bake-dish, pour the ravy or stock about them and bake intil tender. Serve at once. If you ike, you may thicken the gravy and your it about the base of the peppers is they stand on a hot dish.

Fish Calces.

Ingredients: One pound of cooked ish, one egg, milk, frying fat, one pound of cold potatoes, one ounce of outter, seasonings, anchovy sauce. Mix the flaked fish, free from bone, with the mashed potato. Season with sait, sayenne pepper, and a few drops of inchovy sauce. Moisten with butter iissolved in a little warm milk, add a beaten egg. With a steel fork beat all logether till thoroughly mixed. Form into round cakes, mould flat, brush over with beaten egg, dip into crushed dry bread crumbs, and fry in plenty of boiling fat to a golden color.

Preserved Rhubarb.

Cut the rhubarb into inch lengths, wash, and allow a pound of sugar to every pound of the rhubarb. Put the shubarb and sugar in alternate layers n the preserving kettle and add a very sttle water, setting aside over night. In the morning drain off the liquid and boil to a syrup, add the rhubarb and simmer until tender. Remove the rhubarb, pack into jars and boil the syrup antil thick, adding at the last the juice of three lemons to every seven pounds of sugar that has been used. Fill the lars to overflowing with the liquid, then seal.

In looking over the effects of a Massachusetts millionaire recently, his executors, who had handled vast sums until they grew to seem rather commonplace, "discovered personal property, hitherto unknown, to the amount of a million and a half." The incident helps one to realize how large a large fortune is. And yet the emotions of these erecutors were only such as poor folk may experience. Who has not known the joyful surprise of finding a dime or a nickel in an unused pocket?

The events of the present war in the far East have shown that the Japanese -known to the nations of the world as "the little brown men"-are the equals of any other soldiers on the globe, whether the test has been one of bravery, endurance or accuracy in firing. The severest tests of modern warfare have been repeatedly, for months past, applied to these small soldiers of the Orient. Pitted against soldiers of large size and boasted endurance, they have emerged from the smoke of conflict in every instance, whether on sea or land, victoriously.

It is certain that the schools are peculiarly the victims of the faddists. A few years ago all our educational authorities went daft on the subject of vertical handwriting. It never occurred to them to find out whether the merchants who hire bookkeepers approved of this style of writing. There was no thought of the individuality of the child of which ordinarily the handwriting is supposed to be the expression. So the vertical style was adopted. Now we are informed that it is being abandoned because the men with jobs to give will not tolerate it. This is but one illustration.

The growth of the American navy has been unprecedented in the annals of the world. It is a good navy, consisting of stout ships manned by able men and intelligently directed, but some of the naval officers and officials of the Navy Department are beginning to ask what good it is to build the ships if there are no men to man them. Their queries are not unreasonable. There is not a ship in the navy " is not short of men and officers, and in order to overcome this lack some ten or more vessels which are in need of some repairs will be put out of commission for the time being, not because the repairs are so serious as to call for this step, but simply because of the shortage of the men behind the guns.

The English, as a people, are univerally known as a nation of very sturdy paper carrier or the street car conductor or some other whose work compels him to be up early. There is not a rich man among them. The man who is at liberty to wake up leisurely, to come down to his breakfust with- glis- to his lips. As this is the way out any hurrled preparations and who children are usually advised to take goes to his business after he has read the morning paper is far more likely to be healthy and wise than the man in a rush, and he is certainly a far more agreeable man to meet either in a social or business way. If one must get up early, if fate decides there is no other way, resignation is called for, but let no man who gets up early think he is living the ideal life or that his action calls for special praise. Even though he may be amiable he would be far more amiable if he would let nature have her way and wake up slowly. Who knows but that in the last analysis the origin of all evil is the getting uf too early, begianing the day "wrong end to," and finding out when it is too late that a little more sleep, a little more slumber would have made the face of all creation look brighter?
