A county correspondent in one of our exchanges says that Monday of last week was the coldest day this season as it was the first time this winter that he found the bugs frozen to the bed clothes

It is said that "cold hands are a sign of a warm heart." We don't know so much about that, but we do know that a wife's cold feet is sure sign of a cold back for her husband.—Johnson County Tribune.

Nebraska can't be beat for weather A week ago Monday the thermometer was 35 below zero and last Monday it was warm enough to have the doors open part of the time and we didn't need much fire all day.

The state normal had to dismiss school on Monday of last week on account of the standpipe freezing up. The building is steam-heated and as they could get no water they had to dismiss till the pipe was thawed out.

Wm. Ernst will come close to scoring a home run, if he gets his twine factory bill passed, and is as much of a success as the Kansas factory. When some of the people, who painted his picture so black last fall are buying their twine for about five cents less on a pound they will think, "well he wasn't so bad after all."—Johnson News.

John H. Dundas of the Granger believes in advertising. When other methods fail he announces himself as a candidate for some office. Between times he denounces the chronic office seeker. Last fall he announced that he was going to run for state senator, without the aid or consent of anyone else if necessary, but afterward got too busy to circulate his petition and withdrew from the race. This week he announces that he is a candidate for congress, regardless of party, creed or politics.

There are a great many breakfast foods on the market, but nothing that we have tried in recent years fills the vacancy quite so satisfactorily as the corn cakes that mother used to make, when nicely smeared over with real ham gravy. As side dishes, fried hominy, the real thing, homemade, always found a warm reception.—Johnson County Tribune.

If Bro. Pool would change this to buckwheat cakes with good maple syrup, it would suit us to a T.

Conductor Henry Carson came in from Holdrege last evening in charge of the B. & M. passenger train. He left here a week ago this morning and this is the first time that he had been able to get home. He says that he experienced all kinds of trouble and his train did not reach Beatrice any time since he left until yesterday and then he came home. He says that he has railroaded a number of winters but this one takes the prize for severity and causing the railroads grief.—Neb City News, Feb. 21.

The Nebraska state missionary society of the Methodist church will hold a convention in this city beginning Feb. 28 and ending Mar. 2. The demands for aid from home and foreign fields is so much in excess of the supply of money and other assistance that a general call has been issued urging conventions and activity generally.

The purpose of the convention is to bring together all of the forces of the church within the state for the consideration of some of the problems fundamental to the evangelization of the world and also for prayer fellowship and conference methods and best helps. Bishops Andrews, Thoburn, Joyce, Hamilton and Warren will be here, as well as many Methodists prominent in national work. Julius Smith, a missionary of Burmah, and D. W. Nicholas, a missionary of Nanking, besides many others.

The central theme of the program will be "Nebraska Methodism and World Evangelization." A large number of topics have been assigned and there will be an educational exhibit. Low rates have been secured at hotels and the railroads charge one fare plus fifty cents. The number of delegates is limited to one thousand. Credentials are issued only upon the receipt of the application and $1. the registration fee. The convention headquarters will be in St. Paul church.—Lincoln News.

Poisons in Food
Perhaps you don't realize that many pain poisons originate in your food but some day may feel a twinge of dyspepsia that will convince you. Dr. King's New Life Pills are guaranteed to cure all sickness due to poisons of undigested food—or money back, 55c at Keeling's drug store. Try them.

Robins have been reported plentiful in several nearby towns, and some plausible explanations of their presence have been advanced. But the truth is, they are not robins at all, but rose breasted grosbeaks. This bird inhabits the far north, and is never seen in this country unless the winter is unusually severe. In general appearance the grosbeak resembles the robin, but is somewhat shorter and stouter. While the breast is red it is of a brighter shade than that of the robin. They subsist on the hard seeds of coniferous trees, and their beaks are crooked at the tips to enable them to crack these seeds easily. The mistake is a natural one, but a close examination will show quite an unrobinlike bird.—Weekly Wymorean.

Plattsmouth, Nebr., Feb. 18.—A stranger who visited Cass county several weeks ago in the interests of an incubator manufacturing firm, proves to have worked the farmers. The prices at which he offered to deliver his machines were less than one-half what the ordinary machines of that kind are sold for, but in spite of this suspicious circumstance he succeeded in securing a number of orders—the purchasers being required to sign a contract by which they agreed to pay $7 each at the time the machines were delivered, the purchasers found when the machines were delivered that the purchase price on the contracts they signed had increased since they saw them last from $7 to $27. It is related that one of the victims became so angry that he brought out a shotgun and compelled the agent to make a hasty retreat from his premises.—Nebraska City Tribune.
