

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of use. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening medicine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy or know its composition, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

It is said that the lace-making industry is dying out, not only in England, but in Italy and France, where Alencon and Chantilly are no longer made. The Spanish industry is dead, but Belgium now turn out lace of any required style or name.

According to the United States Fish Commission, Missouri is the greatest frog production state in the Union. Experts employed in an investigation of the best methods and best places of frog propagation have found Missouri's climate best adapted to frog raising, with that of Arkansas second.

TIRED BACKS.

The kidneys have a great work to do in keeping the blood pure. When they get out of order it causes backache, headaches, dizziness, languor and distressing urinary troubles. Keep the kidneys well and all these sufferings will be saved you. Mrs. S. A. Moore, proprietor of a restaurant at Waterville, Mo., says: "Before using Doan's Kidney Pills I suffered everything from kidney troubles for a year and a half. I had pain in the back and head, an almost continuous pain in the loins, and felt weary all the time. A few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills brought great relief, and I kept on taking them until in a short time I was cured. I think Doan's Kidney Pills are wonderful." WANT THEIR NAMES CHANGED.

Musical Names of Indians Sound Ridiculous When Translated.

Many of the Indian students shortly after their arrival at Haskell Institute ask Superintendent Peairs to change their names, as the English translation is often ridiculous and a source of constant humiliation to its bearer. Many of the musical sounding names of the various tribes are utterly silly when translated into a different tongue.

Strike-in-the-Face, Feather-in-His-Hat, Tobacco-in-His-Pipe and Hears-With-His-Ears are good illustrations and it is no wonder that dignified young Indians sometimes object.

The question of Indian nomenclature is getting to be a serious one with the department on account of the promiscuous changes made by the Indians in their names. When the Indian enters the school he is given a school name which is usually a translation of his Indian name unless the former is too ridiculous. This name he usually retains all his life, in spite of the fact that he holds his allotted lands in another name spelled in five hyphenated syllables.

The troubles of the department along this line are also increased by the fact that no two members of the same family keep the family name.

The department has awakened to the fact that on account of the indifferent attention given by the Indians to the naming of their children there will be serious complications in a few years when the settling of large estates becomes necessary on account of death of the founders of the families. Legal disputes over relationships and inheritance are already becoming numerous and the mix-up over the inherited lands of the Indians will be a very serious problem the department will be forced to face in the near future.

Although no legislation to this effect has taken place, a strenuous effort is being made at the present time to make the children of one family all retain the family name.—Lawrence, Kan., Journal.

TRouble WITH HIS EYES.

For a man of his age, Grandfather Sampson had remarkably good sight, but the time had come when he could no longer see well enough to read ordinary print. Yielding to the inevitable, he went to an optician's and had his eyes fitted with a pair of spectacles.

He wore them only while reading, but his delight in his new aids to vision was unbounded. To be able to read once more was like having a new lease of life. At the end of a week, however, he began to have misgivings. The spectacles were hurting his eyes. The words on the printed page grew blurred and dim.

"The trouble is," he said to himself, "that I have been overdoing it. My eyes haven't got used to the things yet."

For a week longer he used the glasses less frequently, but this did no good. His powers of vision seemed steadily to fall, and in great distress he went back to the optician's.

"See here," he said, "when I got these things they were all right, but now I can't use them at all. What do you suppose is the trouble?"

"Let me see the glasses," said the optician.

Grandfather Sampson handed them over. The optician wiped them carefully and put them back on his eyes.

"What do you think is the trouble, Mr. Sampson?" he asked.

"Nothing—now!" exclaimed the old gentleman, picking up a scrap of a newspaper that lay on the show case and holding it up before him. "I can read with them as well as ever. Was that all they needed?"

"That was all."

"Say"—the old man lowered his voice—"don't say anything about this to my folks, will you?"

Well, We "Pass."

Jack Brewer, of Brewers, Ky., has a tree at home whose actions he cannot quite understand. Last year it produced some of the finest pears in the surrounding country, while this year a fine crop of beautiful apples have appeared. The tree is four years old and was purchased from some nursery the name of which Mr. Brewer had forgotten. He is anxious for someone to solve the mystery and tell him the name of the tree.—Maysville Messenger.

The Wrong Name.

Mrs. Innocent—Henry, what objection have you to that young man who is calling on our daughter?

Mr. Innocent—He is silly, Susan.

Mrs. Innocent—Oh! that's because he's in love. I remember the time when you were a very silly young man.

Mr. Innocent—Silly, isn't the proper name for it, Susan. I was a measly idiot—that's what I was.—Newark Advertiser.
