

quaint and attractive valentines are shown in the shops this season that the giving of them will doubtless find more favor with children and grown-ups, too, than it has in many years. For, unlike the average type, that is so perishable, these are more substantial-like pictures-and are really ornamental enough to hang on a wall or to use on a bedroom table. They differ from the ordinary styles in that there are comparatively few verses or lines relating to the day or conveying messages of love. In addition to these changes, there is another marked one, that is the absence of glittering gold or silver decorations, which save the valentines from being gaudy. The colors used are conservative, too, and altogether they will make desirable presents for girls and young women, for they are free from silly sentimentality and are quite artistic in de-

Three pretty girls look out of the windows, while the coachman and footman on top, garbed in white, drive three white woolly lambs that are harnessed to the coach with red silk cords. children's faces in colonial headgear, is decidedly effective and really serviceable, for it is made of stiff paper and could be used.

Cards that may be used as bookmarks or to hang on gas jets, a knob or a dresser or bureau, are always acceptable. Some of these, made in Dutch designs that are so popular, are stunning because of the combinations of colors and the quaint costumes worn by the peasant children, who are shown in the act of carrying water. Heart cards, with cupids, red hearts and arrows are also pretty and are always in demand.

TOASTS TO SUIT THE DAY.

In Honor of St. Valentine All Should Treat of the "Gentle Passion."

Even if nothing stronger than coffee be on the table, a dinner is not a dinner unless some toasts be offered. There are many books from which appropriate toasts may be given.

For instance, there is the sailor toast -"Here's to our sweethearts and wives: may the latter always remain the former, and the former soon become the latter;" and there is dear old Rip Van Winkle's sentiment:

"Here's to your health and your family's, and may you live long and prosper."

But sometimes something a trifle out of the ordinary seems to be in order, and such an occasion, surely, is St. Valentine's day. All the toasts on this occasion should, of course, treat of "the gentle passion," and the more original they are the better.

Often, if the toastmaker is clever, he or she can give the toast a personal turn. Often, too, the simpler it is the better, especially for amateur speak-

Too Interesting to Bury.

There is a certain little southern girl who is very fond of her negro mammy. The nurse's name is Sally, and she is a large woman, so she is known as Big Sally. Ethel, however, calls her "Biggie" for short. One day her mother took her to a museum, where, among other things, there were some stuffed animals. Ethel was greatly interested, and for many days she did not tire of talking about them. Perhaps a week later, at the supper table, after a preoccupied silence, she said:

"Mamma, when Biggie dies I'm not going to have her buried; I'm going to have her stuffed!"

Sorrowing Widow Had to Have Picture by Which to Remember Hubby.

To be exhumed after he had been buried for 20 days and told to sit up and "look pleasant" was the tough luck that befell a corpse out at Woodlawn cemetery, New York, the other day. Henry Brown, a train dispatcher on the One Hundred and Twentyninth street elevated road, died December 6 of rheumatic gout and was buried decently and in order. Some two weeks after the funeral it occurred to Mrs. Brown that she would like a photograph of her husband, having none that did him justice. Immediately she petitioned the Bronx health department for permission to exhume Henry and snapshot him. The health department was somewhat dazed, but granted the request, and so, with a photographer and an undertaker, Mrs. Brown went to Woodlawn and had the three weeks' corpse dug up. Brown was taken both profile and full face.

IT SEEMED INCURABLE

Body Raw with Eczema-Discharged from Hospitals as Hopeless-Cutlcura Remedies Cured Him.

"From the age of three months until fifteen years old, my son Owen's life was made intolerable by eczema in its worst form. In spite of treatments the disease gradually spread until nearly every part of his body was quite raw. He used to tear himself dreadfully in his sleep and the agony he went through is quite beyond words. The regimental doctor pronounced the case hopeless. We had him in hospitals four times and he was pronounced one of the worst cases ever admitted. From each he was discharged as incurable. We kept trying remedy after remedy, but had gotten almost past hoping for a cure. Six months ago we purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies. The result was truly marvelous and to-day he is perfectly cured. Mrs. Lily Hedge, Camblewell Green, England, Jan. 12, 1907."

new one to Cleveland with him. According to the story, a Boston girl got on the street car one day carrying one of those muffs the size of an ordinary hassock. She had only one hand in the muff. A young man sitting next to her took advantage of the opportunity to slip his hand into the unoccupied end of the muff.

The Boston girl turned upon him severely. "I could have you arrested for such a familiarity," said she. "But," she added, "I'm from Boston and I purpose to keep calm. Now, I'll just give you ten minutes to let go of my hand."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.
