

Obituary

Chas. F. Lukins, son of A. B. and J. E. Lukins, was born at Morrison, Ill., August 20th, 1864, died at the residence of his brother-in-law, F. L. Woodward, at Nemaha, Nebraska, Tuesday evening, March 3, 1908, aged 43 years, six months and 13 days.

At the age of four years he moved with his parents to Jasper county, Mo., where he grew to manhood on a farm. At the age of twenty-one years he finished a course at Spaulding's Business College, in Kansas City, after which he worked a year in the office of J. K. Landis, in the livery business. Then his health not being very good he went to Las Vegas, New Mexico, and drifted into the cattle business, which he continued up to his last sickness about a year ago.

He first worked for the Bell Cattle Company at Las Vegas, New Mexico, in which company he stayed twelve years; then was appointed cattle inspector for the New Mexico Cattle Association, which position he held for three or four years, and resigned on account of his health, and took charge of the T. C. Shoemaker Ranch, near Raton, New Mexico. He left the Shoemaker ranch to take up the handling of cattle papers for different banks and commission firms of Kansas City, and the Boatman Bank, of St. Louis, and continued with them until the handling of cattle papers was discontinued. In August, 1905, he was appointed by the U. S. government as cattle inspector of Oklahoma, which position he held up to his last sickness about a year ago. Mr. Lukins, while being sick for over a year, was only confined to his bed for few days before his death.

On Dec. 15th, 1897, he married Miss Carrie R. Woodward, youngest sister of F. L. Woodward, of Nemaha, Nebr., in Kansas City, Mo., who, with his mother, Mrs. J. E. Lukins, and brother, W. H. Lukens, both of Jasper, Mo., and a host of relatives and friends, mourn his loss. His mother and wife were at the bedside when he died.

Chas. F. Lukins leaves a host of friends at the Kansas City Stock Yards, and also wherever he was acquainted. His friends were always counted by the number of his acquaintances.

The funeral was preached at the home of Mr. Woodward, in Nemaha, at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, Rev. Ayers officiating, after which his body will be taken to Atchison, Kas., for burial.

War Record of J. W. Sapp, Sr.

I enlisted on the 16th day of September, 1861, at Newcastle, Indiana, in Co. D, 36th Indiana Volunteer Infantry, to serve three years, or during the war, leaving a wife and four boys almost penniless. We organized at Richmond, Ind., went from there to Indianapolis, from there to Jeffersonville, crossed the Ohio river into Louisville, Ky., went from there to Bowling Green, from there to Ft. Donaldson where we had a fight with the Confederates under Buckner. Grant was the Union commander. Buckner's forces were routed, and from there we marched up the Cumberland river to Nashville, Buell in command, with a force of 30,000 men, 26 steamboats and 2 gunboats. We landed in Nashville in March and lay in camp about six weeks; we were then ordered to Shilo, or Pittsburg landing, going out under Nelson's division. After a hard march we waded Duck river at Columbia, Tenn., camping for the night at Pre. Polk's farm. The next day Nelson got in advance and pushing his division hard landed at Pittsburg Landing just in time to save Grant's army. Our regiment being the first to cross the Tennessee river. Grant's army at this time were almost routed, being forced to the water's edge, and many soldiers were standing waist deep in the river and imploring us, as we were crossing, to take them back, but we were fresh and eager for a fight and we certainly had a hard one for about two days. The Confederates were routed, there were about 32,000 killed and wounded on both sides.

After the evacuation of Corinth Buell's army came back to Nashville. Our brigade marched from there to McMinnville, a distance of about 86 miles. This was in 1862. At this time Bragg invaded Kentucky, so we were marched back to Nashville, and from there to Louisville after Bragg, and from there to Perryville where we overtook Bragg and had a fight, driving him through Cumberland Gap. From here we marched back to Nashville, arriving there in October, having marched across the state of Kentucky three ways. Then in December we marched onto the Confederates at Stone river. There we fought almost hand to hand off and on for four days. Finally we routed them, holding the battle field. There were in this fight about 24,000 men killed and wounded on both sides. We camped here for awhile and recruited. This was the first of the year 1863.

After a rest we marched on to Chatanooga, with Rosecrans in command. The Dutchman was alright, and as brave as a lion. He marched us around through Chatanooga and struck the Confederates at Chicamauga Creek at Ringgold, Ga., and had a hard fight for two days. The Confederates outnumbering us two to one, and we were repulsed at this point, falling back to Chattanooga, a distance of about 16 miles, there we held until reinforced by Uncle Joe Hooker with the 11th and 12th army corps. Then our brigade with four others was ordered across the Tennessee river at Chattanooga and marched over the Cumberland mountains to Shellman, then we re-crossed the river and went into camp at Whitesides, Tenn., making the route in four days and nights, during that time I never had a mouthful to eat. This march was made to reinforce Uncle Joe Hooker on that side of the river.

After a rest of three or four weeks we went after the Confederates, who were stationed on Lookout Mountain. We charged up the mountain three columns deep, capturing six thousand prisoners. This fight was above the clouds, and the next morning everything had cleared away and we could see everything. It was a grand sight as Lookout mountain is 2700 feet above Chattanooga. In a little while Sherman with his division opened up on the enemy at Missionary Ridge, and the fight raged all day. The Confederates were driven off the ridge with heavy losses, we having captured 80 pieces of the enemy's artillery. Our lieutenant was killed in this fight. Then Gen. Bragg retreated to Dalton, Ga., and we came to Whitesides, Tenn., and spent the winter of '63 and '64 there. That winter my wife's house was burned and everything she had in the world was burned with it, as she and the little boys were eight miles from home visiting. I tried hard at this time to get a furlough, as it certainly looked as if I was needed at home, but couldn't make it at that time, as the government needed every able bodied man in the front. How Mrs. Sapp and the little ones got along, God only knows, I don't.

Next came the campaign of the summer of '64, Gen. Bragg on the Confederate side and Gen. Sherman on the Union. The first stand was made at Dalton, Ga., by the Confederates with 80,000, we had 180,000 men, the first time we had outnumbered the Confederates. They were driven from Dalton to Resace, from Resace to Rome, from Rome to Big Shanty, at which place our first Lieut. was killed, from Big Shanty to Peach Tree Creek, from there to Atlanta, from there to Jonesboro. This was a continual fight and a hard one, every day for about three months there was fighting somewhere along the line, and some days we were all at it.

About the 16th of September we started home, our time having expired nearly two weeks before we left the front. I arrived home Oct. 1, at midnight, and found my wife and the boys living in a little log cabin, getting along fine. I had been out just 38 months, and had only seen them once during that time. I secured a 20 day furlough after the battle of Shilo, and this time was spent with my family. After my furlough expired I reported at Indianapolis for duty. From there I was sent with 75 others to Iuka, Tenn., when we arrived there the regiment was gone, so we went to Decatur, and from there to Athens, where we found our regiment, after having been on the road 21 days.

I write this at the request of my only daughter, that she might remember a part of my trip through the war after I am dead. I am 72 years old, and live with the same woman I married when I was 19 years old.

$100.00 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of grippe or acute cold that a 25 cent box of Preventives will not break. How is this for an offer? The doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventives—is certainly complete. It's a $100. against 25 cents—pretty big odds And Preventives, remember, contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would never appear if early colds were always broken Safe and sure for feverish children. 48 Preventives 25 c. Dr. W. W. Keeling.
