WASHINGTON—A cut in the maintenance of a British battle fleet and in the cost of upkeep of a fleet in the Navy has been the subject of recent comment by Admiral William A. Doo, who was recently appointed the new secretary of the Navy. Admiral Doo said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.

The admiral said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet. He said that the United States has been able to maintain a fleet that is equal to that of Great Britain, and that the cost of upkeep of the American fleet is much lower than that of the British fleet.