Iron and Steel Production.

From the Denver Republican. There are now three great iron and steel-producing countries, Great Britain the United States and Germany. At one time Great Britain had almost a monopoly of this industry, and doubtless many Englishmen thought that no strong competitor would ever appear.

England's great abundance of fine coal and its large supplies of iron ore especially fit it for the production of iron and steel. It will, undoubtedly, always be a large producer, although statistics show that during the last thirty years both the United States and Germany have risen rapidly into prominence as competitors. This progress has been particularly made in the last thirteen or fourteen years.

In 1878 the world's production of pig iron was 14,117,902 tons. Of this Great Britain produced 7,181,051, the United States 2,801,215 and Germany and Luxemburg 2,147,641 tons. In 1889 the world's product was 24,869,534, of which Great Britain produced 8,245,336, the United States 7,603,642 and Germany and Luxemburg 4,887,504 tons. It is thus seen that between those years Great Britain's production of pig iron decreased in relation to the world's product from 45.20 to 33.16 per cent of the total.

That of the United States during the same time increased from 16.30 to 30.57 per cent of the whole. In 1890 the United States exceeded the product of Great Britain, the total of this country being 9,569,850 tons.

The increase in the world's production of steel between 1878 and 1889 was relatively greater than that of pig iron. In this England lost a little ground in its percentage of the whole product, whereas the United States increased. Nevertheless, the total production of steel in Great Britain exceeded that of the United States in 1889 by nearly 300,000 tons.

The United States has for a long time exceeded Great Britain in the production of Bessemer steel ingots and Bessemer steel rails. In 1886 and 1887 the product of this country in all kinds of steel exceeded that of Great Britain, but in 1888 and 1889 the latter country had the lead. However, in 1890 the American product of all kinds of steel exceeded the English product of the year previous by nearly 800,000 tons.

These statistics tell a story of wonderful development in a great industry in the United States. That this industry has grown up in consequence of the imposition of a protective tariff does not admit of question. If it had not been for the protective duties, the great facilities which England possessed for the production of iron and steel would have prevented the investment of capital in United States. We should still be dependent upon Great Britain for our supplies of iron and steel, and that, too, at much higher prices than Americans pay for these products now.

Much of the wonderful development of the interior of this country would have been impracticable, but now we see the United States standing in a higher rank than its greatest competitor and with the prospect of holding forever the first place.

What a Magazine Costs. A very good idea of the amount of money it costs to successfully conduct one of the magazines of to day is aptly illustrated in some figures regarding the editorial cost of the Ladies' Home Journal of this city, says the Philadelphia Public Leader. The Journal is edited by Mr. Edward Bok. For shaping the thoughts of his 750,000 woman readers each month Mr. Bok is paid $10,000 per year, and has an interest in the business besides which nets him fully twice his salary. He has a staff of sixteen salaried editors, which includes men and women like Rev. Dr. Talmage, Robert J. Burdette, Palmer Cox, Margaret Botome, Isabel Mallon and Maria Parloa. The combined salaries of these editors exceed $20,000 a year. The Journal spends each month $2,000, or about $25,000 a year on miscellaneous matter not contributed by its regular editors, and the working force in the editorial department means at least $6,000 more in salaries, making over 60,000 a year, and this represents but a single department of the magazine; and I question whether any periodical is conducted on a more business-like and economical basis than is the Journal. No wonder that J. B. Lippincott, when asked by a friend why he did not keep a yacht, replied: "A man can only sustain one luxury—I publish a magazine!"
