vast amount has been wellten about the submissiveness of Oriental wives, and few exceptions to the rule of passive endurance among them are noted. A short time ago, however, an Oriental wife beater was punished by his victim in an appulling manner Mahmud Khan, with his favorite wives. Ayama and Khairnasha, was on hi way to Mecca. One night, between Rolan and Sindh, his tent was pitched opposite that of a German tourist, who served what pro eeded within and thus was able to reveal the motive in a subsequent tragedy.

At bedtime Mahmud Khan threw himself on his couch and called in Avama to give him the usual rubbing. Ayama, however, failed to treat her lord to his satisfaction, and, anatching a piece of wood from the ground, he struck her a savage blow on the back. The young girl, hardly 16 years old, started under the blow, and, to the surprise of the watching tourist, made a slight, almost imperceptible movement, as if to return it, as she set her teeth and glowered at the ground. Mahmud Khan evidently remarked neither the look nor the movement, for he rolled over and went to sleep, while the injured Ayama stole

The little caravan moved on the next day, and in due time arrived at Jacobabad, whence Mahmud Kahn and his two wives set out for the last part of their journey before embarking. Their way to the next city lay through a dense forest. Two days later Ayama and Khairnasha retured to Jacobabad alone. They behaved strangely and gave contradictory and confused answers to all inquiries after Mahmud Kahn.

They were detained and a search was made for their master. He was found paked and tied fast to a tree. At the foot of the tree was a large ant hill, and during the two days of confinement the ants had eaten much of the flesh off Mahmud Khan's bones. He was dying when found, but was able to explain that his wives had drugged him, tied him while unconscious to the tree, smeared his body with wet sugar to attract the ants, and, after stirring up the ant hill, had left him to die Mahmud Khan lived three days after the rescue. Ayama and Khairnasha were condemned to hard labor for life, but hanged themselves immediately.

SON OF A KING.

Living in London on $50 a Week Penking Theodore of Abyssinia will live in history as the semi-savage monarch who proposed marriage to Queen Victoria, and imprisoned several Englishmen in his chief town and compelled England to send an army to his lofty mountains at an expense of thousands of pounds to release the captives. King Theodore watched the battle that decided his fate, and, when the British soldiers, flushed with victory, were about to enter his stronghold, he shot himself. He left a son, who is now a pensioner on the bounty of England. He calls himself Prince Charles Alexander Edward Theodore, and he lives in England on $50 a week. The dusky Prince has had an unpleasantness with a Mr. Hearn, who ventured to remark that a pin which the Prince wore on his breast was not worth a shilling. The Prince resented the remark, whereupon, according to Theodore's story, Hearn exclaimed, You black brute, what do you mean?" and raised a heavy cane to strike him. truggle ensued, during which Hearn used threats of murder, but he was put out of the room. The Prince had Hearn arrested for assault and the story came out in court. The magistrate decided that the one side was as much to blame as the other and dismissed the case. Theodore is only one of quite a number of the scions of fallen rulers who are living on the pensions granted to them by the British govern-

$25,000 FOR A CHERRY STONE. It Had the Head; of 124 Potentates Carved Upon It.

In a museum of curiosities at Salem, Mass., there is preserved a common cherry seed or stone, hollowed and fashioned like a basket. Within the basket are twelve tiny silver spoons, the shape and finish of which cannot be distinguished with the naked eye.

The name of the artist who constructed this little wonder has been lost, but the actual existence of the thing itself will not be questioned by any one from the Old Witch headquarters of the Bay state.

Dr. Peter Oliver, who lived in England during the early part of the eighteenth century, tells of seeing a carved cherry stone which would be a wonder even in this age of fine tools and fine workmanship. The stone was one from a common cherry, and upon it were carved the heads of 124 popes, kings, queens, emperors, saints, etc.

Small as they must necessarily have been, it is announced on the authority of Professor Oliver that with a good glass the heads of the popes and kings could readily be distinguished from those of the queens and saints by their mitres and crowns. The gentleman who brought this little wonder to England purchased it in Prussia, allowing the original owner £5,000 for his treasure. Think of it, $25,000 for a cherry seed!

At Decatur two ladies, evidently mother and daughter, came aboard and sat down facing a distinguished-looking, faultlessly attired scranger, who proceeded to stare fixedly at the young lady until forbear nee ceased to be a virtue. The hot blood mounted to her cheeks, and she plainly showed her aversion to the stranger's attentions. Finally the elder lady spoke to him sharply, calling him impertineat, but he continued staring as before. The young lady sprang to her feet an l struck him sharply on the check with her fan, remarking that she would "give him a lesson in good manners that he would remember." The stranger half rose, removed his hat and said with the utmost politeness. "Ladies, I am truly sorry I have offended; but I-I am blind." Then it was the young lady's tarn to apployize.
