TOUSED BY A WHALE. The Section and Dangerous Experience of a Little Schooner.

The schooner Luiu lies on the ways the wharf, in San Diego, Cal., in quite a delapidated condition, her bot-tom scraped as though she had been drawn scross the bight, and about a quarter of her rudder is missing. It

One evening lately Captain Ed Burke was at the wheel, sailing northward under a stiff breeze. The vessel is of te tons burden, and was loaded with our and a half tons of fish. He was ist off Point Conovas, 250 miles south, was he meward bound. All at once the little craft reared up out of water, the stem went down into the ses, and s crashing told that something unusual had happened.

John Fitshughes was sitting forward near the port rail, and he went grabbed a loose line that hung over the side. The vessel next raised out the water from the middle, as if forced up by a powerful jackserew. She went up like a flash, and fell back just in time to right herself. Then sthing struck the rudder a powerful joit, and the tiller threw Captain Burke sprawling upon the deck. By this time Fitzhughes had managed to erawl aboard, and a huge whale appearing to be wounded, threw water rom his spouting apparatus all over the vessel. The monster swam rapidly away, spouting at irregular but frequent intervals, and the two old salts got down on their knees and offered up fervent thanks for their safe de-

STORY OF A PATENT.

The Accidental Origin of an Exceedingly Clever and Useful A ticle.

The accidental origin of what may yet become a useful patent came under notice lately. A cashier in a New York downtown restaurant had returned from his vacation, and had on his holiday run a thorn into the palm of his hand. The wound caused him considerable pain, to alleviate which he put a rubber band around his hand, which held in place a moistened sponge. "That's a clever idea," remarked a esterner, "for moistening your ngers when counting bills. Where o you buy them?"

The cashier explained what the real use of the band and sponge was.

"Do you mean to say that thing is not patented?" asked the man, and, arning that it was not, expressed his intention of taking out a patent at The cashier, however, told the ale to a New York man, who promptly hurried off and had a strap and kle made, to which is attached a containing a sponge. The whole be comfortably carried on the and, and, in future, cashiers wishing noisten their finger tips have only close the hand. The New York man got the patent

CAPTURED WITH A WHIP.

How an Adirondack Farmer Surprised r

An Adirondack farmer discovered that a bear was prowling around his pig pen, and from the tracks he judged it to be a small bear, perhaps a yearling. One evening, on returning from the neighboring village, he saw the marauder plainly outlined in the moonlight. Stepping back in the shadow, he cut a blue beech "ox gad" the length of an ordinary fish pole, and with this weapon he started for the bear. The bear turned at the sight of the man and received a cut on the nose that brought tears to its eyes. Another, clip brought its nose down between its forelegs, and every time it raised its head down came the gad on the same spot. In vain poor Bruin tried to run away; the man was active as a cat, and handled the whip like a ring master. At last the bear started for the smokehouse, only too glad to get out of range of the castigation, and there it was safely barred in until morning, when it was shot. It is not to be supposed that an old, full-grown bear could be captured in that way, but the feat was certainly very re-

The Thinness of a Bubble.

The most powerful microscopes render visible a point about 1-100,000 part of an inch in diameter. There is reason for believing that a single molecule is much smaller even than that. One reason for this has been deducted from the soap bubble. Scientists have measured the thickness of the envelope of soapy water inclosing the air of the bubble when it had become so thin as to produce rainbow tints. At the appearance of the shade of violet it was one-fourth the thickness of the length of an ordinary violet wave of light, onesixty-thousandth of an inch, thus making the thickness equal to onetwo-hundred-and-forty-thousandth of an inch. As the bubble continued to expand a black patch formed adjacent to the pipe from which the bubble was being blown, and the thickness of such patch has been found to be only one-fortieth of the thickness of the violet section, or about one-fiftymillionth of an inch.

He Eats at Random.

J. B. Rumford, of Los Gatos, Cal., has originated a new system of living, which he calls the Edenic system. He eats nothing but raw wheat, consuming about three-quarters of a pound a day. Bread, butter, sugar, meat, eggs and milk he regards as poisonous. He eats only when he is hungry and appears to thrive on his strange diet.

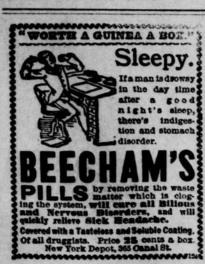

At 40, he says, he was an old man, whereas, now, though 60, he feels "I can get along," he adds, on one or two cents a day and do a good day's work. Five cents worth of colled oats have lasted me twenty-four hours while traveling. I could not possibly eat more than ten cents worth of wheat a day; so you can see how economical my system is." Mr. Rumford also has a theory about feeding horses, giving them only one good meal a day just before bed time.

Holy Lands of All Religions.

Christians call Palestine the Holy Land because it was the birthplace of our Savior, Jesus Christ, as well as of our religion. To the Mohammedans, Mecca, in Arabia, is the Holy Land, it being the scenes of the nativity of Mohammed, the savior of those who believe in his doctrine. India is the Holy Land of the Chinese and other priental Buddhists, it being the native land of Sakya Muni, the supreme Buddha. Elis, one of the several divisions of the ancient Peloponnesus, was the Mecca and the Jerusalem of the Greeks. The temple of Olympius Zeus was situated at Elis, and sacred festivals were held there each year. The believers in the Sinto religion make annual pilgrimages to Sitsa-Kara, the immense stone pillar where their supreme ruler last stood while talking Novel Use For a Watch.

An ingenious German has reduced so trifling a matter as boiling an egg to an absolute science and has devised a watch for that purpose for particular people. The watch has a series of dials to mark hard, soft and medium, for ducks and hens' eggs, there being, however, but a single hand or pointer. The mechanism marks the minutes and half minutes up to ten, and even the dullest of servants, by the aid of this apparatus, can tell when to remove the boiler from the fire.
