ABOUT FINGER NAILS.

Sickness is Shown by Short Ridges
--Superstitions About Cutting

The philosophy of the finger nails is a most interesting study, simple though it may appear at first sight.

It has been computed that the average growth of the finger nail is 1-32d of an inch per week, or a little more than an inch and a half per year. The growth, however, depends to a great extent upon the rate of nutrition, and during periods of sickness it is undoubtedly retarded.

It is understood to grow faster in summer than in winter, and differs for different fingers, being most rapid in the middle finger and slowest in the thumb and little finger.

According to the rate of growth agreed upon by eminent authorities the average time taken for each finger nail to grow its full length is about four and a half months, and at this rate a man of 70 years would have renewed his nails 187 times.

Taking the length of each nail at

Taking the length of each nail at half an inch he would have grown 7 feet 9 inches of nail on each finger, and on all his fingers and thumbs an aggregate length of 77 feet 5 inches.

It is asserted by some that the nails of the right hand grow faster than those of the left.

It is interesting to watch the history of a case of disease as recorded upon the finger nails; we see on each of them a distinct ridge, showing that the portion of the nail which has grown since the acute attack is much thinned

If a person has broken his arm within eighteen months the ridges on the nails of the hand of the affected arm may be seen, while they will be absent on the other hand. The more attention the other hand. The more acute the illness the sharper will be the ridges. Extreme anxiety and metal depression have the same effect on the nails as physical disease.

The finger nail is a very enduring evidence of desease. If there has been an acute rheumatism in the system, with a temperature of 104 or 105 degrees, the nail will be cut down sharply.

sharply.

In typhoid fever, where the disease comes on gradually, there is no sharp cutting of the nail.

There are several well-known say-ings with regard to the paring of finger nails, and among them are the follow-

"Cut them on Monday, cut them them on Monday, cut them for health; cut them on Tuesday cut them for wealth; cut them on Wednesday, cut them for a letter; cut them on Thursday cut them for something better; cut them on Friday, cut them for a wife; cut them on Saturday, cut for life; cut them on Sunday you cut for evil, for all that week you'll be ruled by the devil."—Boston Globe.

Baggage Checks.

The system of checks for baggage in use on all the railways of the United States does not prevail abroad. The London and Northwestern road in England a year or two ago adopted the plan for steamship baggage "in deference to the prejudices of American travelers," to use the words of the company, but in most cases trunks and bags must be identified and claimed by the owners who travel over European roads. Nevertheless, the inventor of the baggage check was an Englishmen. His story has been told in this way:

eighty-two years ago, and came to the United States in 1829, and came Union City, Michigan, in 1885. In those early days his violin enlivened many a winter night. One great annoyance he experienced was the constant trouble people had in finding their wraps after the party broke up. He thought on the subject often, and a plan finally suggested itself. Just before a large dance he numbered a lot of cards in point. numbered a lot of cards in pairs—1, 1: 2, 2; 3, 3, etc. One card was given to each person, and the other card was attached to his wraps. Among the first to arrive were four railroad men from Marshall, Michigan. Three took their checks; one three his on the floor. When they called for their coats and hats they had forgotten all about the checks. After hunting some time the three produced their checks, and at once received their wraps. They had to identify the coat for the fourth man.

Shortly after another party was given at Burlington, and among the guests were six railroad men from Marshall, including the first four. They watched the checking plan the whole evening. Within three months it was adopted by the railroads of the United States.

Puritan Families.

Being a child in a large family is far pleasanter than being an only son or daughter. The Independent calls attention to the fact that severe as the life of the New England Puritans was in some respects, the children must have enjoyed their home life. How could they help it when they had so many brothers and sisters? Cotton Mather says:

"One woman had not less than 22 children and another had an another had an another had a less than 22 children and a less than

children, and another had no less than 23 children by one husband, whereof 19 lived to man's estate, and a third was a mother of 27 chil-

Sir William Philips was one of 26 children, all with the same mother.

Printer Green had 30 children. The Rev. John Sherman, of Water-town, had 26 children by two wives—20 by his last wife. The Rev. Samuel Willard, first minister of Groton, had 20 children, and his father had 17 children. Benjamin Franklin was one of a family of 17.

The little Puritans rejoiced also in some very singular names, the off-spring of Roger Clap being good ex-amples: Experience, Waitstill, Pre-served, Hopestill, Wait, Thanks, Desire, Unite, and Supply.

Some Leeds children had been sent into the village by a charity fund for a fortnight's country air. The clergyman, on asking a group of these little girls to what parish they belonged, was informed by one little town mite, with much pride, that she lived close to the parish church. "Ah!" said the clergyman, "what is the name of the vicar?"

— a new appointment had recently been man, "what is the name of the vicar?"

—a new appointment had recently been made to this nursery ground of dignitaries. "I don't rightly know his name." was the reply; "but we calls him 'Old Ginger." "Dear me." said the parson; "but why 'Old Ginger?" "Why, that's the color of his whiskers!" These whiskers which now adorn episcopal cheeks have since, alas! changed to a decided gray.—The Spectator.

Of the diseases to which it is stapfed with the best results. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a family medicine, comprehensive in its scope, has mever been thrust upon public attention in the guise of a universal panacea for bodily fils. This claim, daily arrogated in the columns of the daily press by the proprietors of medicines far inferior to it as specifics, has in a thousand instances disgusted the public in advance by its absurdity, and the prospects of other remedies of superior qualities have been handicapped by the pretentions of their worthless prodeces ors. But the American people know, because they have verified the fact by the most trying tests, that the Bitters possesses the virtues of a real specific in cases of maisrial and liver disorder, constipation, nervous, rheumatic, stomach and kidney trouble. What it does it does thoroughly, and mainly for this reason it is indorsed and recommended by hosts of respectable medical men.
